Dying Sully widow was swindled by heartless gang

A terminally-ill Sully widow was "emotionally destroyed" after a gang of six 'travellers' conned her out of more than £270,000 by claiming to have carried out work at her home, Cardiff Crown Court heard.

REPORT by

allowed the cash to be paid into his account and knew from the start that the money was "dodgy".

It came from Mrs Cornock, aged 76, a widow and a former bank employee, who was known to be "cautious and prudent" in all financial matters.

She had roughly £300,000.

She died in a cancer hospice in Penarth last year. She also suffered from mild dementia.

Her daughter discovered that large sums of money had been withdrawn from her account, including ISAs. The family was so alarmed that the police were contacted.

Mrs Anne Cornock of Dunster Drive, Sully, was "systematically swindled". She broke down when her daughter told her what had happened.

Sean White (25) of Century Wharf, Cardiff, was jailed for two years after he pleaded guilty to two charges of converting criminal property.

Judge Paul Thomas said that White had allowed his bank account to be used for the stolen cash by the gang, who have not been traced.

White, said the judge, deliberately closed his eyes to what was going on. "Without thoroughly dishonest people like you, the men who swindled Mrs Cornock could not have prospered so easily".

Mr Jones said White and told the police: "I knew this would happen and I knew you would be coming for me."

He said he had thought about going to the police himself because the men had intimidated him, bombarding him with telephone calls.

He said his profit from the crime was £2,000, and that he had bad personal debts and had also taken a loan of £22,000.

He claimed that he didn't realise that Mrs Cornock was involved, and said he thought it could have been drugs money.

The £2,000 was "to kind of keep him quiet".

Mr Jones said it was discovered that a total of £272,310 had been paid out of her account.

Defence counsel Jeremy Jenkins said that White was not directly involved in the swindle, but he was the conduit for the money and facilitated the way in which it was laundered.

The men, he added, were "of the travellers' community and he knew them only by nicknames."

Mr Jenkins said that they would stop at nothing. Sometimes they would quarrel among themselves, when knives would be produced.

"He accepts he should have contacted the police immediately. He and his family have faced threats."

White was arrested in his Crwys Road office

WELSH MENTAL HEALTH CHARITY TO BENEFIT Dare-devil family set to skydive from 13,000 feet!

THREE generations of a Barry family are taking part in a dare-devil tandem skydive to raise money for a local mental health charity.

Daughter Tegan (19) mum Debbie (48) and grandmother Marie (70) will jump from 12,000 - 13,000 feet on behalf of Gofal Cymru.

Debbie Twigg explained: "Since starting work for Gofal Cymru in the Vale I have gained an insight into the effects mental health has not only on the individual but also close family, extended family and friends."

"We are all looking forward to the jump which takes place in Swansea on April 4, but are really nervous as well."

"The thought of skydiving from 13,000 feet does turn our stomachs a bit."

Amazingly, Tegan is making the tandem jump despite not liking heights!

"I've never been one for heights but when my mum told me she was considering a skydive I thought 'new year, new challenges!'

LEFT:
Three brave ladies – Debbie, Marie and Tegan – are ready to skydive to raise funds for the mental health charity Gofal Cymru.

by TIM CHAPMAN

"Not only will I be doing the skydive to test my personal boundaries, but it will also be a good way to raise money for a service that helps people to face their issues and move forward with their lives."

Marie, who works at Gibbonsdown Children's Centre, explained: "Skydiving has been a personal ambition of mine for several years and when my daughter told me about the work she does in Gofal Cymru and that the idea was to help others needing support, I thought it's now or never!"

"Over the years I have helped raise money for a couple of different charities including Cancer Research by completing several sponsored walks from Barry to Cardiff. I really enjoyed being able to contribute in this way and decided to do something different this year."

"When I was asked 'what next?' by a friend who cannot believe I am doing a skydive, I replied, 'The Bristol Channel, but I'll have to learn to swim first!'"

Former CID chief jailed

A FORMER head of South Wales Police CID received an 18-month jail sentence earlier this week for corruption.

The judge in the case, which was held at Bristol Crown Court, told him that in view of his behaviour "the public would be justifiably outraged if you didn't receive an immediate custodial sentence."

School transport u-turn 'victory for common sense'

WE would like to take the opportunity to thank everyone who supported our campaign, alongside Jane Hutt AM and parliamentary candidate Alana Davies, to stop the Tory council withdrawing free school transport for 16-19 year olds in the Vale of Glamorgan.

From the families directly affected, to school heads and governors, there was complete opposition to the proposal to cut this vital service, which would have discriminated against young people who wished to continue in further education.

A special thank you goes to the parents and representatives from some of the affected schools and colleges who spoke at Scrutiny committee against the proposal and supported us in our fight.

We are delighted that in light of such opposition from the majority of the Lifelong Learning Scrutiny committee, the Tory cabinet reversed their decision to cut free transport - which is a victory for common sense!

Horse Poo - the facts!

I HOPE this will put an end to the hysteria surrounding horse manure: Leptospirosis is transmitted to humans by contact with the urine of rats, cattle, foxes, rodents and other wild animals.

It has been associated with swimming, wading or diving in contaminated lakes and rivers or paddling in streams.

Contrary to a previously published letter, leptospirosis cannot be contracted from horse manure.

As horse manure is 70-80 per cent water, any pathogens within it are heavily diluted and therefore you would have to ingest copious amounts of it to suffer from any adverse conditions.

With regards to horse manure being broken down before it is used on gardens, an award-winning gardener friend of mine regularly uses horse manure as a fertiliser.

It arrives directly from a local stable yard and is then used on all her plants and vegetables, without being left to compost.

To conclude, there are no reports of any humans becoming ill following contact with horse manure.

All these facts can be verified on various websites.

Pay rise: 'councillors should remember the low paid workers'

I WAS surprised to hear of the proposal to give Vale councillors a pay rise of 4 per cent, although I understand that this was the recommendation of an outside body.

I know how hard councillors work for their current basic allowance of £13,356, but this is not a full time job.

The full time low paid workers on minimum pay of £5.80 an hour, if over 22 years old, will be earning little if any over the basic allowance of a councillor.

These are the front line workers, such as cleaners and care workers, on whom we all depend.

These low-paid workers have had less than inflation pay rises for the past two years and this year might well have a pay freeze.

Senior management in the Vale have received over-inflation pay settlements in recent years. While the average public sector pay rise for last year was 2.5 per cent, the chief executive actually got 14.3 per cent.

These payments all come out of our council tax and when it is a struggle to maintain our main-line services, I urge councillors and senior management to be prudent salary-wise and have no more increase percentage-wise than the lowest paid workers.

G Baty, Llanblethian

'Don not use Bryneithin as political football'

I WAS somewhat bemused by the comments made by councillors Gordon Kemp and Nic Hodges with regard to the failure of the scrutiny committee to pick up the obvious points made in our legal challenge.

Readers must be made aware of the fact that the scrutiny committee were never given copies of our legal challenges, merely rubber-stamping the director of social services' report. We made formal requests for this oversight to be corrected but the chair and members of the scrutiny committee were denied copies.

At the time, we kept the matter of the contracts, in reserve, as we felt that the council's failure to obey all current legislation - with regard to the statutory rights of the public and patients - would be sufficient for them to realise the glaring errors in their procedure.

In spite of the clarity of our challenge, the council refused to comply, choosing to ignore the consequences (and the huge waste of public money) in a cavalier manner.

Therefore, the comments of both councillors are at odds with the facts, and their primary interest seemed to be to use the closure of Bryneithin as a political football.

Neither of them played any helpful part in pressing our campaign, beyond seeking publicity for their parties. They now have the opportunity to correct this by supporting our campaign for Bryneithin to be open to new patients and those seeking respite care.

This would nullify the council's restrictions, made in response to their losing their case as a result of their own ineptness.

The final 'coup de gras' was delivered brilliantly by our excellent solicitor, Yvonne Hossack.

AM's visit to Stuttgart

I RECEIVED the Conservative Party leaflet 'Vale Matters' through the post this week, referring to the visit Alun Cairns AM has made recently to Stuttgart regarding the closure of the Bosch plant.

However well intentioned Mr. Cairns' visit to Germany might have been, the Vale of Glamorgan Liberal Democrats would like to know:

• Why is Mr. Cairns getting involved in Assembly business for the Vale when he represents south-west Wales

(which ends at Bridgend)?

• What benefits do his constituents gain if, even when he's working in the Assembly, he is spending time addressing issues in the Vale?

• Did Mr. Cairns use his Assembly expenses to fund this trip? If so, why does his leaflet talk about him being a hard-working candidate, but fail to mention the fact that he attended as a representative of the Assembly?

• Why is the Welsh taxpayer paying for Mr. Cairns to campaign for a parliamentary seat? Dr. David Ellis Treasurer, Vale of Glamorgan Liberal Democrats

HIGH TIDE TIMES

(UNTIL APRIL 01)

The high tides listed in this week's GEM are those in Porthcawl. It should be remembered that along the coast, high tide times will vary. For instance, in Barry, the high tide will be 20 - 25 minutes later.

LOCAL POLITICIANS RAISE DOUBTS OVER DEVELOPMENT IN NORTH PART OF TOWN

'The White Farm proposals are flawed' claims Plaid parliamentary candidate

THE Plaid Cymru parliamentary candidate for the Vale has called for plans for more than 180 houses at White Farm in the north of Barry to be thrown out by the Vale Council.

Persimmon Homes East Wales has submitted plans for 189 homes on the 6.03 hectares of land known locally as 'White Farm'.

But Dr Ian Johnson said the proposal was for 69 more houses than were suggested in the Vale's unitary development plan which followed an inquiry several years ago agreeing that housing development could take place on the land.

Dr Johnson explained: "I am not personally in favour of development on White Farm at all. Barry has too few 'green lungs' as it is, but the inquiry failed to accept those arguments."

"There are quite clearly far too many houses for the site and for the area's infrastructure - a predicted seven per cent increase in traffic on main roads such as Colcot Road, one of Barry's busiest routes, is possible."

"As many of the houses are three or four bedrooms, they will almost all be two or three car households, which will probably be unsustainable for the local road network."

Dr Johnson said he was also concerned that there may be a problem with flooding.

"Drainage is another issue. Only recently, the Welsh Assembly gave a large grant to solve the problems that caused the July 2007 floods along the Coldbrook culvert, but that good work may well be undermined by over-development at White Farm."

"I believe that plans to build on White Farm, especially in such great numbers, need to be reassessed from the beginning, especially in the light of the 2007 floods."

"The Vale Council should throw these plans out and tell the developers to start again."

Dr Johnson said that housing developments in the town over the previous half century had lacked proper planning.

"For the past 50 years, the north and east of Barry has seen housing development after housing development, often without consideration of facilities for local people or integrating the developments with the centre of town."

"With the possible Waterfront relocation of Barry College, will we see plans for more houses there, as we have seen elsewhere, leading to yet more traffic?"

"Barry is the largest town in Wales and needs to keep its green lungs and sense of community and identity, rather than kow-towing to property developers."

Alana Davies, Labour parliamentary candidate for the Vale, has similar reservations about the proposals.

She explained: "There are questions which need to be answered - for example, why is the council considering allowing substantially more dwellings than set out in its own unitary development plan?"

"Why is it now considered that the highway infrastructure is adequate to cater for so many additional homes, when the previous view was that the numbers should be limited?"

"Why is the issue of drainage on a flood plain not causing grave concerns, given the severe flooding that occurred in the area just a few years ago?"

REPORT by TIM CHAPMAN

Ms Davies said it was time the application was considered by the planning committee, so that local residents could hear the arguments being put forward, adding: "I believe that the residents deserve answers to these questions."

IMPACT STUDY

Tory parliamentary candidate Alun Cairns revealed that he had been working with local residents who had concerns over the project.

He said: "First and foremost is the flooding risk, particularly with the history of the area. I have called for a full impact study."

"There are also concerns of over-development. A total of 189 properties is a significant number and way in excess of previous figures. Clearly, an unsustainable position."

"Having worked closely with local residents on flooding in the past, we will continue our joint pressure on this."

Barry resident, Mr Dennis Harkus, said he had four main objections to what was proposed.

Mr Harkus said: "Firstly, the proposed density conflicts with council policy and the recommendations of the independent planning inspector."

"The transport statement should be challenged by independent experts, and the open space proposals should be subject to genuine and meaningful public consultation."

"Finally, planning permission should be obtained through politicians and not council officials using delegated powers."

The GEM understands that White Farm has not yet been scheduled to go before the Vale's planning committee, but with meetings planned in May, June and July, that could change.

Mr Steve Williams, the managing director of Persimmon Homes East Wales, told The GEM: "We fully take on board the concerns and comments from Dr Ian Johnson and the wider community. However, it is imperative that new homes and communities are developed and delivered in Barry to keep up with the growing demand for properties and the current shortage of houses."

"In 2005, the Vale Council formally identified the White Farm site for housing and informal open space in its UDP plan which firmly established the principle of residential development on the southern part of the site."

"In accordance with the plan, an outline planning application was approved by the Vale Council for residential development on the southern part of the site and public open space to the north."

"The development of the site for housing and public open space has been subject to thorough public consultation through both the UDP allocation and consideration of the outline planning application."

"The Planning Inspectorate and the Local Planning Authority have determined on both occasions that the development of part of the site for housing is entirely acceptable."

Mr Williams emphasised the facilities that were planned.

"As part of the development, there are plans for a large equipped play area, a network of footpaths to enable the local community to make better and safer use of the open space and a footbridge over the Coldbrook. Survey work has also been carried out to establish the impact of increased traffic and results have concluded that the existing highway network in the vicinity of the site is capable of accommodating the anticipated seven per cent increase."

"To prevent any risk of flooding, surface water running off the site - will be captured and attenuated so that its discharge into the Coldbrook will be controlled at green-field runoff rates."

"Persimmon is committed to creating communities for local people to live in, both now and in the future, and we hope that the local community will understand the importance of creating new properties."

Rob Thomas, head of planning and transportation at the council, said: "The merits of the application are currently being considered alongside the representations received from the local community and all other interested parties and organisations."

"Once the application has been fully and thoroughly assessed, the matter will be reported to the planning committee for a decision."

"With reference to the comment from Mr Harkus, I can confirm that given the scale of the proposal, it was always the intention to report the matter to the planning committee for a decision," he insisted.

EISTEDDFOD DAY AT YSGOL SANT CURIG

THERE was excitement galore when Ysgol Sant Curig held its school eisteddfod.

A mix of stage performances and results from art and literary work made it a busy day!

Tesni Sewell (pictured right), of year-6, went on to win the crown and the chair. It was a nail biting finish to the competition, with the 'Carfan' house winning the day by a mere two points!

The school had a St David's day service, conducted by year-2 classes. To celebrate the day, Welsh clothing and the traditional Welsh costume were worn by the children.

On National Book Day, the school planned a variety of activities for the children to enjoy. These included re-designing book covers, creating bookmarks on the computer and even baked some star cakes!

The school celebrated success at the Urdd Eisteddfod and wish all their pupils well at the National Eisteddfod. RJ

Saddle stolen from house

POLICE in Penarth are investigating after a saddle was stolen from a house on Wordsworth Avenue between 2pm-5pm on Tuesday, March 9.

Penarth neighbourhood Police Constable Emma Fitzgerald said:

"The dark brown leather GFS brand saddle with stirrups is designed to fit a horse which is 15 hands tall.

"It was removed from the hallway of the house, and we are seeking witnesses or information regarding this theft."

"We would like to hear from anyone who may have any information regarding this incident."

"If you saw anyone who may have been acting suspiciously in the area during that time or someone carrying a saddle or offering one for sale, we would like to hear from you."

'We must protect our green spaces'

MAY I, through your newspaper, express my disgust and dismay at the proposal to build 189 houses on the land known as White Farm, which also includes an area I understand belongs to the Vale of Glamorgan (i.e. the people of the Vale).

When I was involved in the fight to save this land as a 'green lung', we lost out at a non-statutory public enquiry, after which we were informed that the Vale of Glamorgan's Highways Dept recommended that no more than 90 houses should be built, due to lack of infrastructure in the area.

If you consider the extra traffic this will generate, entering and exiting the development via Whitewell Road, with traffic lights to be situated at the junction with Colcot Road, already chaotic due to all the lights at the hospital, it is a truly horrendous prospect.

Has any consideration been given as to how emergency vehicles would access the Pastures, or the proposed development?

Please, council members, give these matters some consideration...

We have very few green spaces left in Barry, and we need to take care of them.

Council defends its decision over 16-19 schools transport as the row rumbles on

THE savings that would have been made by the Vale Council if it had introduced a charge for school and college transport for over-16s will have to be made from elsewhere in the education budget.

Last week, the council decided it would continue to provide free school transport for over-16s following opposition from its own scrutiny committee, school teachers, governors and parents, who all argued against it.

The council had originally considered cutting the service to make savings in the education budget.

The Vale cabinet member for education, Coun Tony Hampton, said:

"We had 1,117 responses to the consultation exercise and all of these were against the scrapping of, or charging for over-16s transport."

"We in no way want to disadvantage any young person who wishes to continue their education beyond 16 and we have decided to maintain our funding of this service."

"We will however be investigating ways to monitor the use of the service, to ensure we are not funding any places on school or service buses that are not fully utilised."

Coun Leader Gordon Kemp, pointed out: "Cutting the transport for over-16s, which the council is not legally required to provide, would have saved the council £175,000 in the remainder of this academic year, and £300,000 in 2011 to 2012 onwards."

He warned: "The current economic climate is having a devastating effect on all council budgets and our education department has to save £3 million over the next two years. The savings we would have made by cutting free transport for over-16s will require savings elsewhere in the education budget.

"Post compulsory education, that is education for over 16s, is directly funded by the Welsh Assembly Government."

"I would like to see the Assembly fund the whole cost of educating our 16-plus students and that includes transport."

Assembly involvement was a point that Conservative AM Alun Cairns was keen to stress, pointing out that when he proposed a measure in the Assembly which would have made providing transport for the post-16 age group obligatory on all councils in Wales, Labour and Plaid AMs had been opposed to it.

He said: "If that measure had been passed, there would have been no question of the Vale Council having to make any decision. It would have been out of their hands."

But Coun Neil Moore, the Leader of the Labour Group on the Vale Council slammed the Tory cabinet for trying to rewrite history.

He said: "In a cabinet report last November entitled 'Transport Arrangements for Learners Aged 16-19' the Tory Vale Cabinet agreed to consult with stakeholders on the removal of free transport for students over compulsory school age."

"The Tories obviously wanted to scrap this free transport, otherwise they would not have proposed it."

"However, before they could bring in this draconian plan, they had to consult those affected before implementing their plan.

"The consultation is now over and a campaign against their plans by pupils, parents, teachers and Labour councillors has shown the amount of resentment to this change in policy."

"Not surprisingly, the Tory cabinet have now agreed to abandon their plans to scrap the plan, but they are not content to add insult to the injury."

To add insult to the pupils and families who would have been affected, the Tory cabinet has put out a press release saying: 'Vale Cabinet saves free school transport for 16 year olds'.

"I am flabbergasted by the attempt of the council to rewrite history."

"They clearly had plans to scrap school transport for pupils over-16, but you would not know it, if you read their recent press and web statements!"

Plaid parliamentary candidate Dr Ian Johnson told The GEM he welcomed the fact that those aged 16-19 would continue to receive free transport:

"This is excellent news for parents and pupils at a wide range of schools in the Vale, but especially for those in faith schools who have to travel outside of the Vale and would be financially penalised for this."

"This was a flawed plan from the outset, as was recognised by more than 1,100 respondents who disagreed with both of the options given by the Vale Council."

Deputy steps up to Head at St Cyres

GOVERNORS at St Cyres School, Penarth, have appointed Dr Jonathan Hicks as headteacher.

Dr Hicks, a local historian and a regular contributor to The GEM, is currently senior deputy head of St Cyres.

He was acting head-teacher during 2007-8 while the current head-teacher Brian Lightman was seconded to the post of president of the Association of School and College Leaders.

Mrs Audrey Males, Chair of Governors, commented: "Dr Hicks was the outstanding candidate within a very strong field. He is passionately committed to the further success of St

Dr Jonathan Hicks.

Cyres and the ideal person to lead the school through the exciting next stage of its development into a brand new state of the art facilities. He is highly respected by parents, staff and students."

Dr Hicks commented: "I am delighted that the governors have given me the honour of leading the school from next September. Mr Lightman will be a hard act to follow, but I know I have the support of the staff and pupils, and fully intend to ensure that St Cyres moves from strength-to-strength in the near future."

"We can all look forward to the exciting prospect of a new school building and we have ambitious plans for the future learning and teaching of all our pupils."

The sea dogs are on the way!

SEA VIEW LADS are anticipating better fishing with reports of packs of dogs now showing on the long arm at Port Talbot heading our way for the Easter break.

A spokesman said: "Our first boat trip of the year is scheduled for April, so get your names down if you haven't already!"

"There may be spaces for guests; if you fancy a day out with the boys, visit our website and contact us."

"A word of warning for anyone planning to fish the Old Harbour. A small yacht seems to be aground and will surely drift off on the next big tides, so pack the braid and maybe you can claim salvage. HMC you have been advised!"

Clampdown on irresponsible dog owners at Dinas

IRRESPONSIBLE owners who allow their dogs to pollute a football pitch at Dinas Powys are to be targeted by council enforcement officers.

Local resident Chris Frank AM, who represents South Wales Central, wrote to the Vale Council after learning of the problems faced by his local football team.

"Dinas Powys FC play in Division One of the Welsh football league and the club have been warned by the FAW they could face disciplinary action after one game was stopped three times to allow dog excrement to be removed," the Plaid AM said.

The club runs 31 teams which includes a thriving youth section. Two senior teams and an under-19 team play at the Murchfield pitch, where dog fouling is persistent.

A public notice has been erected near the pitch warning owners they can be fined up to £1,000 if they fail to clean up after their pets. Despite this, club officials regularly find dog faeces during their pre-game inspections of the pitch. Mr Franks raised the problem with the council and Coun Geoffrey Cox, cabinet member for visible and building services at the Vale, wrote back explaining: "Only three enforcement officers are responsible for dealing with dog fouling, litter, commercial waste problems and graffiti, throughout the Vale."

"I am, however, very concerned with the problems being experienced in this area and have therefore requested that our enforcement team carry out some enforcement work at the Murchfield, in an attempt to break the cycle of the use of the field by irresponsible dog owners."

Mr Franks said: "It is a shame that it has taken the threat of action by the FAW against Dinas Powys football club for the Vale of Glamorgan to pay a bit of attention."

"I am pleased the council will finally keep an eye on the state of the pitch. Dinas Powys football club are representing the town in the League of Wales."

"Any punishment by the football governing body in Wales would not only damage the reputation of the club, but the area itself."

OPPOSITION MOUNTS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE BRISTOL CHANNEL AS...

Night-time helicopter withdrawal sparks an angry protest campaign

A CAMPAIGN has been launched on both sides of the Bristol Channel to fight proposals to reduce the cover provided by the air-sea rescue helicopter at RAF Chivenor.

Most of the rescue flights to deal with emergencies along the coast and also in the Brecon Beacons, come from the Devon air base but the Ministry of Defence has announced that it wishes to cut the service provided by the crews at Chivenor from a 24-hour-a-day cover to 12 hours.

Emergencies that take place at night, when Chivenor will be off-line, will be dealt with by helicopters based either at RAF Culdrose, which is at the tip of Cornwall, or RAF Valley on Anglesey. The changes would come into effect in 2012.

The protest campaign originated in the West Country and has already gained the backing of Cornwall and Devon County Councils; Devon Police, district councils in the area, a number of MPs as well as groups involved with sea based activities including sub aqua clubs, canoeists, surfers, yacht owners and fishermen. The British Mountaineering Council has also protested.

Support is now being sought on the Welsh side of the channel and councils along the coast are getting involved.

An e-mail from Ilfracombe Town Council has been sent to councils seeking support for the campaign. The campaigners argue that cover for the area served by Chivenor would only be available if helicopters are not already involved in operations in their own areas.

During 2009, Chivenor handled the highest number of call-outs at 339 – compared to 300 from Culdrose and 315 from Anglesey.

A third of the calls received were at night and there are fears that the two other stations will not be able to cope with an extra 100 night time emergencies a year, on top of their own call-outs.

Flying time from Culdrose to the Bristol Channel is half an hour, with the arrival time from Anglesey put at one hour – assuming good flying conditions.

There are no second helicopters and stand-by crews in any of the stations, so once the helicopter is out, there will be no cover for their area.

The Culdrose station covers the Isles of Scilly and islanders depend on its helicopter for all medical evacuations at night. Lundy, which has up to 200 residents, relies on Chivenor for this service.

REPORT by JAYNE ISAAC

Search and rescue teams are also concerned about the delays in arrival times because helicopters can search large areas quickly especially at sea.

Chivenor is also used by the NHS for the transfer of critically-ill patients between hospitals at night because air ambulances do not operate then.

A Facebook site to save the 24-hour service has been set up, and it already has 10,000 names.

The campaign is being backed by Coun Jeff James, who represents Rhooose and is a cabinet member on the Vale Council.

"I am shocked that this cut-back is being proposed," he said. "It is devastating. We need the 24-hour cover from Chivenor in view of the extra travelling time from these other bases."

"All the coastal authorities in south Wales must take this up and join the fight."

Coun James represents the Vale Council on the Severnside and Bristol Channel Authorities Group and he will put this on the agenda for its next meeting.

"I am also appalled that, as a local authority affected, the Vale Council has not been consulted by the Ministry of Defence," he said.

"I will be asking the officers to contact West Country councils to obtain details of their campaign."

Coun David Deere, Conservative leader on Porthcawl Town Council, said that the RAF helicopter from Chivenor was a familiar sight to residents.

He said: "I am very concerned that there are plans to curtail this service."

"We are a major tourism resort with thousands of visitors here in the summer. This proposal will have a major impact on the safety of everyone using the sea along the south Wales coast."

Coun Deere is to raise this issue at the next meeting of the council with a view to pledging support for the campaign.

He added: "We have decision-makers at the Ministry who obviously do not understand the strong tides and currents we have in the Bristol Channel and fail to realise how easy it is for swimmers and others to get into difficulties."

Coun Russell Downe, Mayor of Llantwit Major, said that he was shocked by the news. He said: "I have been in a rescue helicopter myself after I was involved in a car crash and I can testify personally as to how effective they are in getting quickly to the scene of an incident and evacuating people. This is a vital service."

Coun Downe said that the Bristol Channel had the second highest rise and fall of tide in the world, and that factor also had to be considered.

"Llantwit beach attracts a lot of visitors especially in the summer and although we rely on the lifeboat at Atlantic College, there are times when the helicopter has to be called in for a rescue."

"We cannot have unnecessary delays. We are dealing with life and death situations."

Bridgend Town Council discussed the situation at its meeting last Monday and agreed to lodge a holding objection while more information is obtained.

"We must keep this service operating 24 hours a day from Chivenor," said council leader David Unwin. "Seeing the Sea King helicopter is a very welcome sight when there's an emergency going on along the coast at Southerndown or Ogmere by Sea."

"You cannot quantify the saving of a life. We must put pressure on our AM, Carwyn Jones."

The council will write to First Minister Mr Jones to find out what the view of the Welsh Assembly Government is on this matter.

Household waste recycling centre gets the go-ahead

THE Vale Council cabinet has given the go-ahead for a new household waste recycling centre at the Atlantic Trading Estate in Barry.

Council leader Coun Gordon Kemp said: "Construction work is due to commence within the next few months, with the centre scheduled to open by the end of the year."

It will replace the existing Hayes Road site near Sully, and will provide additional recycling and disposal facilities, with vastly improved access and egress, allowing for a greater throughput of vehicles.

Honesty is the best policy for facing the challenge ahead

PROTECTING our public services in the tough times ahead: This was one of the messages of the First Minister, Carwyn Jones AM at a Bevan Foundation conference last week which marked his 'first 100 days' in the post.

He told the conference that he would vigorously pursue a fairer funding formula for Wales from the UK Government, but warned the delegates that after an unprecedented rise in public spending over the past 10 years, the Assembly Government would see a major 'reining' in of its spending power.

He said: "We need to be honest about the challenge – public expenditure will be very tight. It won't be easy – and it certainly won't be painless."

With Assembly Elections timed for May 2011, the theme of the conference was 'One Wales, One year to go' and the First Minister said that the challenge would be to deliver radical solutions to delivering with tighter resources – and to do this without having to report to wholesale job losses in a bid to balance the books.

He was keen to emphasise that we need genuine joined-up thinking, aiming for solutions that could intertwine social, economic and environmental challenges.

I am taking up this challenge in my new role as Finance Minister for Wales, leading a group of key people from across the public sector, from local government, the NHS, the voluntary sector and trade unions, to drive up efficiency and innovation in the way we provide our public services.

Our first meeting was held last week in Cardiff Bay and the work we are undertaking together covers those key areas where we can be more efficient, effective and imaginative.

This includes the way we procure contracts for the public and private sectors, securing value for money but also community benefits such as new opportunities for apprenticeships as we have seen in the Cowbridge Comprehensive School building contract.

It was great to see the contractors and designers for the school at the recent careers fair at Cowbridge Leisure Centre, taking responsibility for engaging and informing pupils from across the Vale about the opportunities that are available in the construction sector, as a result of our decisions to bring forward capital funding for building new schools and hospitals over the past year.

The strands of the efficiency and innovation programme include developing new models of delivering services with a greater emphasis – for example, in joining up health and social care.

Making the most of our assets in the public sector, such as land and buildings as well as engaging our workforce in the tough times that lie ahead is part of our remit, with the Wales TUC as a key partner.

Last Thursday, I was able to announce a new round of funding for 'Invest to Save' projects which can deliver better public services and release savings in the NHS and local government.

This strong drive for efficiency will enable us to protect front line jobs and services and help us to improve our public services in health, education, housing and social services.

This accords with our new legislative powers announced this week to support people receiving care and treatment in our mental health services.

The Health and Social Services Minister, Edwina Hart AM, introduced the new Mental Health measure to provide an assessment of a person's mental health needs and where appropriate, provide treatment within primary care; plus a statutory duty on local health boards and local authorities to provide mental health support in primary care – and to have arrangements for timely access for assessment and access to advocacy support.

The efficiency and innovation agenda also links to the energy policy statement made by Jane Davidson AM this week as she states the need to maximise energy savings and energy efficiency in order to make the majority of our energy production from low carbon sources more feasible and less costly.

The Minister points to our commitment to sustainable energy development delivered through our energy efficiency savings plan and our green jobs strategy.

Of course, our new schools, hospitals and social housing are all vastly more energy efficient.

Fairer funding for Wales is a pledge made by our First Minister and the Secretary of State for Wales as we assess the impact of Wednesday's Budget and start work on the budget plans for the coming years.

What is clear is that we have a responsibility and duty in the Welsh Assembly Government to protect our public services – to be honest about the challenge and priorities we will have to set, and be more efficient in the way we work.

Lydia's story strikes a chord in Cornwall

LAST week's GEM story 'The Sound of Silence' – in which Mrs Lydia Davies recalled the events of the Llandow air disaster in 1950 drew a response from Cornwall.

Mrs Davies (80) who at the time of the tragedy lived at Park Farm, Sisingstone with her parents Evan and Olwen, recalled how the family had cared for two survivors of the crash, which had occurred in a neighbouring field.

In total, 80 people died in the disaster and there were only three survivors.

Pat Merrifield (78) who lives in Cornwall was excited to learn of the story in The GEM and to hear that Lydia is hale and hearty.

She told The GEM: "I used to work with Lydia when I was 15 at the tailor's shop at Llandow Aerodrome. Although we only knew each other for a short time, we were close friends and used to share a lot of laughs – we even shared the same birthday, May 21!"

"Lydia was two years older than me. I was later transferred to work in St Athan and we gradually lost touch. I remember reading that Lydia and her father had helped at the time of the crash."

Since, the 1940s Pat has lived quite a life. She married Brian, an RAF man, in 1949, had nine children, and has travelled the world, including such far flung places as Singapore, South Africa and Australia.

Pat retired to Liskeard in Cornwall seven years ago, but still finds time to visit South Africa to catch up with friends.

She found out about Lydia's story thanks to her sister Pearl, who lives in Llantwit Major and is a regular GEM reader.

The GEM is helping Pat to get in contact with Lydia so they can both catch up on old times. Watch this space!

Grilling for the Commons hopefuls

VALE prospective parliamentary candidates at the next general election will be grilled at a public Question Time session in Barry Comprehensive School from 7pm on April 20.

They are: Alun Cairns (Conservative); Alana Davies (Labour); Ian Johnson (Plaid Cymru); Kevin Mahoney (UKIP); Eluned Parrott (Liberal Democrats).

Headteacher Mr D R Swallow explained: "Doors will be open from 6.30pm and refreshments will be served."

"Entrance is by ticket, requested in advance from the school, and these will be issued on a first come basis."

"The audience will have a chance to submit written questions to the school up until Monday April 19 and from these questions, a broad range will be selected on as many relevant topics as possible.

"The candidates will not know the questions until they are asked them on the night."

"It is envisaged that the evening will last for about 90 minutes."

"As this is expected to be close to the general election, and perhaps the only time the candidates will be on the platform at the same time, there should be considerable interest in the event," Mr Swallow added.

Requests for tickets and questions for candidates can be made in writing to Barry Comprehensive School, Port Road West, Barry CF62 8ZJ or via www.barrycomp.com.

Include your name, address, telephone number, the number of tickets you require and, if you wish, your question to the candidates.

'Rescue helicopter cut-backs will put lives at risk' – claim

CONSERVATIVE regional AM Alun Cairns (South Wales West) says he will challenge the Ministry of Defence over its plans to scale back operational hours for the air sea rescue helicopter based at RAF Chivenor.

Mr Cairns said that plans to withdraw this helicopter service at night, by reducing it from a 24-hour service to a 12-hour one, would impact on the safety of people along the south Wales coast.

"I represent an area which stretches from Gower along Swansea Bay to the Vale of Glamorgan. Thousands of visitors flock to our coast daily in summer and I fear that lives will be put at risk by this proposal.

"The Bristol Channel has dangerous currents and tides and we need a rescue helicopter service available 24 hours a day which is within easy flying distance," he maintained.

"The Ministry has said that from 2012 the area will be covered at night by crews from RAF Culdrose in Cornwall or RAF Valley in Anglesey. Both bases are further away - and in the case of Anglesey, it's an hour's flying time. The increase in time it will take to get a helicopter on station could literally mean the difference between life and death."

RAF Chivenor handled 339 call-outs in 2009 - with more than 100 of these taking place at night.

"Opponents of the plan fear that the two other bases, which have their own areas to cover, will not have the capacity to take on the extra call-outs that this plan entails.

"Only one crew is based at each site so once that's on a call, there is no stand-by crew or helicopter. This proposal could put lives at risk not just at sea but also in the mountains of south and mid Wales which Chivenor also covers."

Mr Cairns will back the campaign to keep Chivenor a 24-hour operation to MoD proposals has come from West Country councils, police forces and MPs, but the campaign is now seeking support from the Welsh side of the Channel.

Weaver's tale
THE Glamorgan Guild of Weavers, Spinners and Dyers will hear a talk on Wednesday, April 14 at 7.30pm in Old School, Sully, by Alain Rouveure on 'Tibetan rugs in exile'. It describes a journey through the Himalayas in search of the ancient art of Tibetan rug weaving and vegetable dyeing.

PUPILS (and police) WALKING TALL, THANKS TO FUNDING!

AN outward bound scheme organised by South Wales Police for pupils at local schools is being expanded, following a funding boost.

During the school summer holidays last year, the four Schools Liaison Officers for the Vale took nearly 250 pupils away for outward bound activities to Storey Arms, Brecon, thanks to funding from local town councils, businesses and Penarth Rotary Club.

The children had a "fantastic time", but the extreme summer weather caused the officers some concern.

PC Chris Thompson, School's Liaison Officer for Barry, explained: "Mountain weather can change very quickly and we were fortunate that the Storey Arms Centre were able to loan us the wet weather gear for the walks. We were lucky the clothing happened to be available but it is not a long-term option."

Following the success

the summer months.

"It also makes the trips accessible to all as we are able to provide the appropriate clothing. This funding has made a huge difference to the interaction we can offer young people and we would like to thank all those involved."

Safer Vale Partnership's "Community Engagement Fund."

PC Meriel Blake, Schools Liaison Officer for Llantwit Major added: "Both these bids were successful and we have been able to buy plenty of wet weather gear for the pupils as well as important safety equipment and additional training for the officers."

"This is a real 'kick start' and will ensure that the summer camp and the mentoring scheme will be able to run safely and effectively for many years to come."

Give a Little, Gain a Lot

'IT SADDENS THIS COURT TO SEE HOW YOU CONSPIRED WITH YOUR FRIENDS... BECAUSE YOU KNEW THEY WERE PREPARED TO BREAK THE LAW' – SAYS JUDGE

Former South Wales CID chief jailed for 'corrupt' behaviour

A FORMER head of South Wales Police CID was jailed on Monday for using his police contacts to gain information for his private investigation agency.

Philip Jones (63) of Aberkenfig, near Bridgend, served 30 years with South Wales Police and retired as Detective Chief Superintendent of the force's Criminal Investigation Department (CID).

He then launched a private investigations agency and persuaded colleague David Lloyd (55) of Pen-y-Fai, to pass him information from police computer systems.

Jones also used freelance investigator Christopher Barnett (37) to illegally pose as a customer to gain information from government and private institutions.

The former detective admitted conspiracy to commit wilful misconduct in a public office and conspiracy to commit fraud by false representation at Bristol Crown Court in December 2008.

Jailing him for 18 months at the same court on Monday, Judge Simon Darwall-Smith slammed his behaviour as "corrupt" and criticised his "lack of moral fibre".

He said: "For a person of your age and former seniority, retiring at the rank of Detective Chief Superintendent, it saddens this court to see how you conspired with your friends David Lloyd and Barnett because you knew they were prepared to break the law to access information.

"This lack of moral fibre on your part goes to the root of the corrupt culture existing in parts of the force. The public would be justifiably outraged if you didn't receive an immediate custodial sentence."

The court heard that Jones retired 10 years ago and set up Hillside Investigations.

Lloyd retired as a Detective Constable at Bridgend police station in 2003 before being re-employed as a civilian casework director on the force's Investigative Support Unit (ISU).

Jones began to pay Lloyd to carry out detective work in his spare time.

The court heard the pair also had an "agreement" through which Lloyd would be paid to pass on information from police databases which Jones could use in his investigations.

Lloyd would use the police national computer, the Quick Address Search system and the Niche search system to perform address checks, searches for previous convictions, car registration checks, and other information searches for Jones.

The agreement lasted from September 2005 to January 2008, when the men were arrested after a lengthy investigation by anti-corruption police which involved bugging their cars.

The court heard how audio tapes of the men discussing the handover of information were collected, and how the police set up an undercover officer called 'Raj' to pose as a client wanting information.

At the same time, Lloyd had also been supplying police information to a man named Robert Morgan, a known criminal involved in drug dealing.

When Lloyd was arrested, he was found to be concealing more than £200,000 of Morgan's money in his attic.

Last month, Lloyd admitted conspiracy to commit wilful misconduct while in a public office with Jones.

He denied conspiracy to commit wilful misconduct in a public office and money laundering, namely the £200,000 cash, with Morgan but was convicted at Bristol Crown Court.

Sentencing Lloyd to four years imprisonment yesterday, Judge Darwall-Smith said: "David Lloyd, I take into account your reputation as a police officer but anyone listening to you give evidence to the jury could not help being amazed at your arrogance."

"You were entirely brazen in helping your friend Morgan and were prepared to conceal a quarter of a million pounds in cash for him."

"As a former police officer, you told the jury that tax evasion was not a crime in your opinion. It seems there was one law for Dai Lloyd and one for everybody else."

"It seems you made little secret of your relationship with Morgan.

You clearly enjoyed Mr Morgan's high-life of fast cars, expensive jewellery and free holidays in Thailand, while you were receiving evidence that he was hands-on in drug operations."

"The number of arrests and searches that came to nothing because you had pre-warned the suspect through your friend Mr Morgan, does not bear thinking."

Christopher Barnett, who Jones used as a freelancer, would pretend to be account holders at financial institutions, the DVLA and utility companies to gain information on case subjects.

Barnett, of Vale of Glamorgan, who admitted one count of conspiracy to commit fraud by false representation with Jones and another count of fraud, was sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment, suspended for two years.

'ABUSED TRUST'

After the verdict, Assistant Chief Constable Nick Croft of South Wales Police said: "These individuals held positions of trust and responsibility within South Wales Police. They abused these positions and let both the public and their colleagues down."

"The vast majority of our staff work very hard to keep South Wales safe and it is a shame that the actions of a few tarnish the professionalism of the organisation."

"Behaviour like this will not be tolerated, and I would like to reassure the public that police officers and staff employed by South Wales Police can expect to be dealt with robustly if they break the law or engage in other misconduct."

"These convictions have been successful as a direct result of a protracted and highly complex investigation which demonstrates the Force's commitment to tirelessly pursue officers who fail to live up to the high standards that we set."

"South Wales Police is committed to dealing with misconduct committed by both serving and retired officers. This force will not hesitate to pursue corruption by police officers and staff and if a similar situation arose again we would adopt the same strong line."

Vale Council may bring in the private sector at local leisure centres

WORKING in partnership with the private sector could be the future for leisure centres in the Vale of Glamorgan.

A report recommending that the council seeks a partnership arrangement with the private sector to manage and improve the Vale's leisure centres, was being considered by the Vale council's cabinet as The GEM went to press yesterday.

The council provides a range of leisure facilities, including leisure centres in Penarth, Barry, Cowbridge and Llantwit Major.

The recession has caused a drop in the number of visitors to the centres, despite considerable investment in facilities including new fitness suites at Barry and Penarth leisure centres. The opening of the international pool at Cardiff Bay, itself a privately managed facility, has also affected business.

Coun Anthony Ernest, cabinet member for tourism and leisure, commented:

"The council values its leisure centres extremely highly and we want to ensure that they continue to offer the best possible health and recreational opportunities to both residents and visitors. In assessing future options for the council's leisure provision, it has become clear that private sector management contractors may allow the council to reduce the cost of the service while offering improvements to the facilities.

"Importantly, the private sector can take advantage of financial benefits that are not available to the council, such as business rate relief and VAT benefits".

He added: "If cabinet does agree to procure a partner organisation to manage the council's leisure centres, it is expected that the employment of our leisure centre staff would be safe.

"We are reliably informed that the management of leisure services by specialist contractors can open up opportunities for staff career progression."

Ed Evans annual walk for brain tumour awareness

THE Ed Evans Foundation's sponsored annual walk will take place on Easter Monday, April 5 starting from Nash Point Car park, Marcross.

It is one of many sponsored walks taking place around the world raising awareness of the plight of brain tumour patients, their families and friends.

"This has been a very popular event the last two years and is a very enjoyable family day out. Let's hope for a fine sunny day," a spokeswoman said.

The foundation was set up following the death of local boy Ed Evans from a brain tumour, to raise money for Cancer Research UK and for Brain Tumour UK.

There are two walks, one of six miles suitable for families, and another of 12 miles for more serious walkers.

Details and sponsor forms are available on website www.edevans-foundation.co.uk or tel 01656 890217.

DIGITAL SWITCHOVER

ADVERTISEMENT FEATURE

IT'S NOW TIME TO MAKE THE DIGITAL SWITCHOVER

WITH the digital switchover now well under way, there is little time to waste in order to make sure you are not left with a blank screen.

The first stage of the switchover occurred on March 3, and the second, and final, stage takes place on March 31.

On this day, all remaining analogue channels will be switched off for good and the remainder of the digital services will be launched.

This means that all Freeview TVs and boxes will need to be retuned in order for you to continue watching television.

The positives of the switchover are that you need no longer worry about picking up certain channels, nor will you suffer from poor quality pictures.

Instead, the digital switch-over will allow those who previously watched television via their aerial better picture quality and access to a number of new channels, previously unavailable.

Should you have any queries about the switchover, or require help, then you can contact 08456 505050 (English language) or 08458 484848 (Welsh language).

Happy viewing!

FLATS PLAN FOR PUB OPPOSED

Villagers are geared for battle over Sea Lawns

RESIDENTS of Ogmores-by-Sea are gearing up for another battle to stop the last pub in the village being demolished to make way for a block of flats.

A planning application has been lodged with the Vale Council seeking permission to build 17 flats on the site of the Sea Lawns Hotel by owner John Howells.

A previous application to create 24 flats on the site was refused on appeal after a two-day public inquiry in 2006 which was packed out by villagers.

The inspector turned the appeal down on the grounds that it would result in the loss of an amenity to the community and to tourists visiting the Heritage Coast.

He also said that the scale and design of the proposal was out of keeping with the surroundings.

Villagers are being backed in this fight by St Bride's Major Community Council, which has lodged seven objections to the plan.

These include fears about increased traffic along a narrow single lane track leading to the site; overloading of the sewerage system and the fact that the development is out of scale and character.

They also protest at the loss of the last pub in the village, even though it has been closed since 2005.

Speaking to The GEM, Coun Chris Howells, who chairs the planning committee, said he was backing the fight to retain the Sea Lawns.

"The loss of the last pub in Ogmores is unacceptable to a large majority of the people in the village. There are clear planning policy guidelines, which emphasise the importance of retaining such community facilities in order to sustain communities."

"There is no doubt that the loss of the village pub would be detrimental to village life and to social well-being in Ogmores-by-Sea."

"The Welsh Assembly has policies aimed at creating and retaining sustainable communities and the role of the pub is acknowledged."

Coun Howells stated that there were strong planning guidelines when the last pub in any community was under threat.

"This is the only hotel within the Glamorgan Heritage Coast and it could play a huge role in developing tourism and also catering for visitors who need accommodation or a meal."

"Apart from that, it was also a place where villagers staged functions, got together or just popped in for a pint."

Mr Howells said that Ogmores-by-Sea is one of the largest villages in the Vale but it has no community facilities.

"We have no village hall or community centre so there's nowhere at all people can get together. The Sea Lawns fulfilled that function."

He pointed out that there were plans to build a further 167 houses in Ogmores, which would increase the population and demand for facilities even more.

A public meeting to discuss the plan has already taken place and a campaign group called 'Save the Sea Lawns' has been re-activated to spearhead the fight.

Mr Williams has argued in the past that the business was not viable because of a drop in trade caused by the smoking ban, and also the need for expensive adaptations to comply with the Disability Discrimination Act.

The GEM was unable to contact him for a comment.

Residents have until March 31 to make their views on the planning application known to Vale planners.

FORD WORKERS SAY 'CROESO' TO £1.5 bn INVESTMENT NEWS

WORKERS at the Bridgend Ford engine plant have welcomed news that a new generation of environmentally-friendly engines are to be built at the plant and other Ford sites in the UK.

Ieuan Wyn Jones, deputy first minister, said that the five-year investment plan, which has been supported by the UK and Welsh governments, would secure jobs and give a boost for the green economy in Wales.

"It shows the confidence that Ford has in its workforce and management at Bridgend whose skills mean they are able to produce a world beating product."

"Wales will be producing a new generation of low carbon engines in a highly competitive global market."

The investment will be in research and development for the Ford Commercial vehicles like Transit and Connect vans and also for low carbon emission diesel and petrol engines.

The investment includes the development of production facilities for the engines in Bridgend. The government has provided £360m in loan guarantees for the investment into the area.

Council leader Mel Nott said that it would secure highly-skilled jobs that were crucial to the local economy.

"It means that Wales can and does compete with the best when it comes to manufacturing," he added.

Bridgend County Borough Council has welcomed the news which will see Ford invest £1.5 billion in its new engine and vehicle technologies.

Council leader Mel Nott said that it would secure highly-skilled jobs that were crucial to the local economy.

'No job losses for councillors'

I WAS interested in the letter from Karl Clarke in The GEM on March 18, in which he made reference to the 4 per cent pay rise the Vale councillors have accepted, and his plea that they should reject it.

If I remember correctly, it was about a year ago that the Vale Council leader, COUN Gordon Kemp, told one councillor who had rejected a similar rise, that he was undervaluing himself, so far chance of our councillors doing the right thing this time.

The Welsh Audit Office has announced that there will be a £1.5 billion shortfall in revenue available to local authorities and that inevitably there will be job losses and a reduction in services.

There will be no job losses among our local councillors, unless the electorate wakes up and votes them out at the next election.

They have made it blatantly obvious that they are only interested in feathering their own nests and why not?

If their seniors in the House of Commons can do it, why shouldn't they?

(Tel 01656 880418)

MARCH 13 brought birthday greetings for Marg Simmons and Adrian Warner.

IT was pleasing to hear the church bells rung on Mothering Sunday when a team from Coity came to ring a special peal.

SOUTHERNDOWN

WI members welcomed a speaker from the probation service at their monthly meeting at the church hall, St Brides Major, who gave an insight into their work.

OGMORE Retired Residents Association held their AGM at the Watermill, when officers were elected.

A programme of forthcoming events and speakers will be issued shortly.

The next meeting will take place on Thursday, April 15. New members welcome.

SPRING is beginning to show with all the crocuses and primroses coming into bloom - the daffodils are a little late this year.

Now is the time to see the spring flowers and shrubs at their best and the National Gardens Scheme for charity will be open at Slade, Southerndown on Easter Sunday, April 4.

THE awaited building of the extension to the church hall will commence next Friday, March 26 and will continue over the Easter holidays.

THE local produce market took place at the church hall on March 20 and was well attended.

It's a good meeting place for a cup of tea or coffee when making your purchases of local meat, preserves, vegetables, cakes and pastries, plants, books and cards. Well worth a visit.

The market is held every third Saturday in the month (10.30am-12.30pm).

PORHKERRY MEETING

THERE will be a meeting today (March 25) at 5.30pm in Porthkerry Road Methodist Church to discuss plans to convert the building into an arts and Welsh-language centre in Barry.

The meeting will last about an hour, and all are welcome to attend and see the plans for a new community resource.

TV services will be off-air for part of 31 March

To get your channels back, you'll need to re-tune your Freeview TV or box. You should be able to do this by 6am, but some of you will need to wait until late afternoon.

How do I re-tune?

- Switch on your Freeview TV or box.
- Press 'menu' on the remote control.
- Select the 'set up' or 'installation' option.
- Select the 'first time installation' option (sometimes called 'factory reset', 'full re-tune' or 'default settings').
- Press 'OK' if your equipment asks if you want to delete all your channels. Don't worry, this is normal.
- If you are prompted for a code, try 0000 or 1234.
- Channels will be automatically installed. This may take a few minutes and your equipment may shut down and restart.
- After re-tuning, you may have to reset your 'favourites' list. If you re-tune a digital TV recorder, you should re-set future recordings.

These instructions are a guide only. For detailed re-tuning instructions of popular makes and models visit digitaluk.co.uk/re-tuning. Satellite and cable TV viewers will not be affected.

Barry College - Celebrating half a century at the heart of the Vale.

Barry College is celebrating 50 years of its life and work at the heart of the community in the Vale. Each month in the Gem, Barry College will be looking back over the last 50 years – with memories and photographs from past students, staff and local residents. To look at photographs of College life from the last 50 years, log on to our Facebook page 'I ♥ BARRY'. To contribute memories, photographs or register as a past student or staff member, contact us by email: 50years@barry.ac.uk or tel: 01446 725015

The Glamorgan Suite restaurant at Barry College recently hosted a dinner to commemorate 50 years of engineering courses being offered at the College. Organised by Engineering Lecturer and long serving member of staff Phil Rees, forty members of lecturing staff, heads of department and technicians – past and present – attended to celebrate the last 50 years.

Current Head of Engineering, Richard Thomas, spoke on the evening and commented on the friendships and memories that have been formed and shared over this time. He said, "We have shared knowledge, interests, funny stories and jokes, happiness and sadness, holiday destinations and caravans! When added together, we have almost 700 years of service to the College, being committed to educating and training thousands of students over the last fifty years."

One attendee on the evening was Stuart Oakley, who left the College in 2009 after 36 years of working as a Technician and then Senior Technician within the Engineering department. Even before he started working at the College in 1973, Stuart has memories of College in its early days as he was one of the first students – starting at the age of 14 back in 1960, the College's first academic year. This makes his involvement with Barry College stretch over a 49 year time span. Stuart was a full-time Engineering student when he first started, before progressing to an apprenticeship.

During his career, Stuart recalls changes taking place around the College – extensions to buildings as student and staff numbers increased, the introduction of new courses and numerous room changes. During his working life, Stuart has seen the development of the Engineering department, including the opening of the Electrical and Plumbing sections, as well as whole new areas of innovative engineering over the years, such as Computer Aided Design. Stuart was involved in these and many other projects over the years, including the Barry College Amateur Radio Society, the Barry College Silver Jubilee celebrations and different sporting and social events.

BRIDGEND LIFE COACH SCOOPS FIRST SPIRIT OF GIVING PRIZE

Inspiring Alison wins Vale businesswomen's award

BRIDGEND life coach and Vale Women's Business Network member, Allyson Gale has been named as the winner of the VWB's first-ever Spirit of Giving award, at a ceremony in the Senedd hosted by the Minister for Business and Budget, Jane Hutt, AM for the Vale.

The VWB launched its search in 2009 for the female entrepreneur, manager or businesswoman who had made the most significant contribution to her business and community.

The awards were launched in memory of Yvonne McDermott, a former VWB member, who sadly died from breast cancer in 2008.

Allyson Gale of Brackla, originally trained as a biomedical scientist and worked for 26 years in NHS management.

In 1998, health problems, related to a pituitary tumour, caused her to retire very early but she is now self-employed as a life coach. She joined the VWB in 2003.

For several years, Allyson has also worked as a volunteer, running a local support group for the Pituitary Foundation, a national charity for people with disorders of the pituitary gland.

In this role, she has been able to use her own experiences, together with her coaching skills, to help other patients and carers.

She has also run coaching-based workshops for the charity, at national level, and now writes a coaching column for their national magazine, Pituitary Life.

Allyson enjoys line-dancing and singing with a Ladies Barbershop Chorus (of which she is currently chair) and an acappella quartet.

"I'm humbled and honoured to win this award in memory of Yvonne, who I knew very well," said Allyson.

"Everyone knows it's a challenge to balance your professional life with something that you feel passionate about in your personal life.

"I believe wholeheartedly in volunteering because the qualities you bring to one aspect of your life are just as valid in the other."

Jane Hutt AM for the Vale, is also patron of the VWB and presented Allyson with her award.

She commented: "I was proud to help launch the Spirit of Giving Awards to recognise the distinctive contribution of women involved in the Vale Women's Business Network in their own businesses and in the community.

"This year, I would like to offer my congratulations to Allyson Gale whose generosity and tireless commitment to helping others is an inspiration to all of us."

Chris Lee, designer and property manager who helped to judge the entries, said:

"Just like Yvonne, whose memory the award honours, Allyson too is an inspirational woman who has shown generosity and giving in both her professional and personal life.

"The VWB was founded on the principles of giving support to others and Allyson has shown to have this quality in abundance."

Llantwit Major businesswoman, Julie Robinson was also named as runner-up.

Julie, who was described by the judges as "inspiring", has been a committed fundraiser for Bridgend Samaritans for at least the last 10 years.

With a young family, she has also set up two businesses, one successfully establishing the first holiday property in Llantwit Major.

The award ceremony was part of an event which also played host to award-winning photographer and VWB member, Anna Proctor's latest exhibition called 'Coast'.

Nervous Bella needs someone she can trust

The GEM is in partnership with the Dogs Trust to find good homes for animals in their care at the Bridgend rehoming centre.

This week: Bella is a 2-year-old Boxer Cross and is a very nervous and under socialised dog. She is best suited being rehomed to live with another dog as she is more confident and settled around other dogs, a spokeswoman for the centre reports.

"She will need an experienced owner willing to continue her socialising and help build up her confidence. She can live with children over 14 years old and over.

"Anyone interested

Bella

in adopting her will need to visit the centre a few times to allow her time to get to know and trust them."

100 per cent record as local children ride the Stagecoach to success!

THE Stagecoach Theatre School is celebrating after 42 children, aged between seven and 17, recently took their LAMDA acting or speaking exams.

They have every reason to celebrate as they achieved a 100 per cent pass rate with the majority gaining distinction!

Stagecoach principal Helene Reynolds explained: "LAMDA was founded in 1861 and stands for the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Art. LAMDA has a global reputation for excellence, and the higher level exams can be used to obtain UCAS points for university entry."

"At Stagecoach, LAMDA examinations are offered to students who want to enter exams in either acting or speaking of verse and prose. For a term they receive extra tuition in preparation, alongside their regular drama, dance and singing sessions."

Helene and husband Rob, who together run five Stagecoach schools in Bridgend and The Vale, are extremely proud of their students' success.

"We have always achieved a 100 per cent pass rate, a testament to the hard work and enjoyment of the children who undertake these exams." All 42 children received a certificate and examiners' written report in recognition of passing the exam. The youngest were seven-year-olds Isabella Carter, Morwenna Brown and Esme Bourne, all achieving a well-deserved distinction for the preliminary grade.

Elizabeth Parker (17) and Andrew McQueen (15) took the prestigious acting solo grade 7 silver medal. They were both awarded their silver medal with distinction.

Youth theatre's Aneurin wins top Olivier award

"YOU'VE done the borough proud!" That was the message from Borough Mayor Coun Jefferson Tildesley and Council Leader Coun Mel Nott to young local actor, Aneurin Barnard, after he won a best actor gong in the prestigious Laurence Olivier awards.

The mayor and the leader have sent a letter of congratulation to Aneurin (23) of Lewistown. The Royal Welsh College of Music and Drama graduate picked up the award for 'best actor in a musical or entertainment category' for his role in the West End cult show Spring Awakening.

Fellow actor Iwan Rheon, 24, from Cardiff, who he stars alongside, picked up 'the best supporting performance in a musical award', while Spring Awakening, itself won 'best new musical' for its run at the Novello Theatre.

In their letter, Coun Nott and Mayor Tildesley write: "May we, on behalf of the county borough of Bridgend, offer our warmest and most sincere congratulations."

"You must be delighted that the hard work you have put in over these past years has culminated in such a spectacular way and has made such an impact in a very competitive arena."

"It is a very proud moment for Bridgend county borough to see one of our young people achieve success in this manner and we offer our heartfelt congratulations to you personally and to the rest of the cast and production team of Spring Awakening."

Aneurin, who was a member of the Bridgend Youth Theatre, will next appear in the forthcoming medieval action film Ironclad, with a host of leading actors, including James Purefoy, Derek Jacobi and Brian Cox.

Top tipping from the Vale of Glamorgan pub!

THE Vale of Glamorgan public house in Cowbridge won The GEM's 'guess the winner of the Six Nations competition'.

On Saturday evening, France beat England 12-10 in Paris in a tense match to secure the Grand Slam.

Most of the local businesses had plumped for Ireland to take the title - but not so the demon tipster Alun John, who correctly went for France.

So if you want to know the winner of next year's Six Nations, you could do a lot worse than pop into the Vale of Glamorgan for some expert advice!

ALL SAINTS PUPILS ARE WELSH STARS IN THE MAKING...!

EISTEDDFOD day was an exceptionally colourful occasion at the All Saints Church in Wales Primary School.

There was the usual display of fantastic costumes, which made the judging very difficult, and headteacher Richard Ware also had a daunting task judging the handwriting competition.

Deputy headteacher Clare Lewis thoroughly enjoyed reading the entries for the poetry competition, which were on the theme of heraldry, as they were also of a particularly high standard.

The overall winner was Sam Phillips, year 6, for his poem 'The Shield of Dewi Sant'.

He was chaired as bard in an authentic ceremony and presented with a carved love spoon as a prize.

The pupils had an action-packed day of art competitions, singing, recitations and dance and as the pictures clearly show, thoroughly enjoyed celebrating their Welsh heritage.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT NOMINATED FOR AWARD

ABOVE: Nathan Keeble and Anna Hardwick of High Street's Food for Thought are celebrating being nominated as 'Deli of the Year'.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT has been nominated by Olive's Et Al for 'Deli of the Year' - a boost for the popular High Street shop.

For loyal customers who vote for Food for Thought, there's a chance of winning a holiday in Spain too!

Nathan Keeble said: "If people would like to vote for us they can go on-line to delioftheyear.co.uk or call in to us for a voting slip."

The staff have one final message: "Don't forget to order your hot cross buns this Easter!"

Forks Café is inspired by 'Twilight'!

FORKS CAFE opened in High Street, next to the former HyperValue, only five weeks ago and is proving to be a popular venue for shoppers.

Alexis Cunningham, the owner of Forks, is an avid Twilight fan, hence the name of the shop, named after the town where the movie Twilight is set.

Alexis commented: "The breakfast called 'Breaking Dawn' is a great favourite and the service providing a take out or dine in service is a definite success."

Shopowners and staff in the street can phone in their lunch orders in advance."

Alexis said their coffee is popular, too. They have gone for a top name, Segafredo, a good quality Italian brand.

The music played in Forks gives the café a lovely atmosphere with many hits from the 50s and 60s playing gently in the background.

Call into Forks for that important break while you browse the many quality shops of High Street.

HIGH STREET TRADERS ARE PREPARING FOR THE ANNUAL EASTER BONNET PARADE

HIGH STREET Easter Bonnet Parade will be held on Saturday, April 3 at 11am – followed by a rather special party!

The chairman of High Street traders, Mr Anthony Hopkins, told The GEM: "First we'll have the bonnet parade, then there's going to be a Mad Hatter's tea party in Cubana's cafe bar."

"Last year, we had more than 80 entries and that set us a target to beat! So come on mums, dads, auntsies and uncles, brush up on your hat-making skills and let's see if we can make this year's Easter Bonnet Parade the best ever!

"Girls and boys have the option of Easter bonnets or to dress up as Mad Hatters."

"Entry details can be found in shop windows throughout High Street."

"Please be outside the old Hype Value site at 10.45am for judging – there are lots of prizes to be won."

COLOURING COMPETITION: St David's Day may have passed, but last week saw a very Welsh day in Barry's High Street.

Lucky winners of High Street's colouring, word search and window competitions were presented with a selection of prizes, ranging from official Welsh rugby shirts to signed team photos and Welsh rugby key rings.

Mr Hopkins said: "We were amazed at the number of high quality entries to our colouring competition and, as always, it was very hard to choose the winners!"

"We are hoping to display all of the entries in shop windows throughout High Street, Island Road and Market Street for everyone to see."

"Some are already on display on the side window of the former Jaks hair salon next to Cubana's."

The winners of the St David's Day competitions were:

PENARTH COMPUTER CLUB NEWS

Office upgrade by Microsoft

MICROSOFT Office users will soon be encouraged by Microsoft to upgrade to the 2010 edition. (The current version is Office 2007).

For people like me (still happily using the 2003 version) Ceri gave us a glimpse of what we are missing by showing us the major improvements incorporated into the 2007 edition.

It will be useful when we have to decide whether to stick with 2003; pick up a cheap offer for 2007 or go the whole hog to 2010 when we know what it is all about. Accordingly, there was much interest in the clear and thorough tour that Ceri gave.

The feature most affecting the Luddites using 2003 is that there are new file types. It is also the feature that is easiest to come to terms with.

The familiar 'doc' file extension became 'docx' for straightforward documents. This allowed the software to recognise the use of XML (Extensible Markup Language). This is introduced to make information more usable over the Internet. It also means that 2003 needs help to open the files.

2003 users can visit the Microsoft website and download a free compatibility package to enable them to open the later 'docx' files. (2010 users have the facility to save their documents in an earlier format if they so wish.)

The same download enables access to the other new types indicated by 'docm' if the document contains macros or 'dotx' and 'dotm' similarly if they are templates without or with macros. A Macro is just a set of internal instructions contained in a document.

There are also improvements in the way the computer presents itself to the user.

The most noticeable of these is the 'Ribbon'. Ceri explained that users of the earlier versions needed to be aware of the existence of the variety of Tool Bars that were available for special parcels of work. For instance, there are controls to help format and build a table within a document, but it requires knowledge of how to open a special toolbar for Tables. Now there is the word 'Tables' on the Ribbon where one click will open a Table tool bar.

This principle is applied to many more of the previously hard-to-find features that many people had never become aware of.

Even better, once you have created a table, if you click inside it at any time the table Tool Bar automatically appears and remains until you click outside the table and it goes away. Now THAT is an improvement!

For more information, telephone 029 2070 8439.

The hills were alive to the sound of banter

VALE of Glamorgan Ramblers met recently at Pontyclun car park, and more importantly, we find out after much banter, set off in convoy up the Rhondda Valley, marvelling at how beautiful the hills looked as they made their way to the Forestry Commission car park at the top of Mynydd Beili Glas.

This was where the walk was starting from. The walk in the Rhigos area was mainly on well identified forestry tracks.

Due to the work that is taking place in felling the trees, a lot of the hillside was bare, which meant that we could appreciate the wonderful uninterrupted views across the valley.

We were lucky with the weather, Corn Du, Pen y Fan and Cribyn in the distance with the sun hitting them, made them look quite majestic, along with the view of the Black Mountains in the far distance, as well as Fan Hir.

There is very little sign of the past in the hills, the once busy industrial workings have given way to leisure activities such as walking, cycling and motor scrambling; although as we drove through the Rhondda Valley, there is still evidence in the buildings of how busy the communities were, and the importance of the area to our past.

It's also quite sad to see some of the buildings falling into disrepair, as they too played an important part in these communities.

The walk next Sunday is in the Blaenau Gwent Area, meeting at Cowbridge Town Hall car park at 9am taking in the Chartists' Cave on Mynydd Llangynidr. This will be combined with a map reading exercise.

With the light nights of BST comes the Wednesday evening walks. The first walk still start on April 14, meeting at 7pm from Cowbridge Town Hall car park for a 3-5 mile easy walk in the local area.

Please visit vale-of-glamorganramblers.co.uk for further information

Giant bluebells? No, dog poo bags!

NO, this is not a picture (right) of giant bluebells, but discarded dog poo bags littering woods near Dinas Powys.

It was taken by GEM reader Roy Gee. "Another scar on the landscape; does this constitute dog fouling, fly tipping, or just sheer laziness with a don't care attitude," he asks.

"If we are to accept this disgusting habit, could I suggest the Vale Council change the colour of the free dog poo bags to green?"

"It would be more environmentally friendly, blending into the foliage."

Walking festival a first in Vale

VALEWAYS has announced the launch of the first, Vale-wide walking festival on May 14-16.

Join the walks across fertile, rolling lowland countryside, along towering cliffs, beaches, through rural villages and historic market towns ranging from full day walks to family walks.

Twenty guided walks will take place across the Friday, Saturday and Sunday throughout the Vale.

They are being delivered between Valeways, Vale of Glamorgan Ramblers, Penarth & District

Ramblers, Dyffryn Gardens, Cosmeston Lakes and Porthkerry Country Park.

The festival represents an opportunity for residents to discover new parts of the Vale and for visitors from across the UK and beyond to experience the area.

The walking festival is being co-ordinated by Valeways, with financial support from the Vale Council.

Visit www.vale-of-glamorganwalkingfestival.org.uk for the full programme and online booking facility.

Stanwell pupils express their views on the community

• These three letters were penned by students at Stanwell School, Penarth, who clearly have strong views on problems in the community!

Shocked by an aggressive taxi driver

I WAS wondering if any of your readers have noticed how taxi drivers seem to think that they're more important than any other driver and that they have an excuse for not following the Highway Code.

On Saturday evening, I was coming home from a day out in Cardiff and a taxi pulled out of a parking space and we got stuck behind it, while it was waiting to pick up some people. He stopped there for about five minutes and when he finally started driving again, he accelerated past a pelican crossing, where some young children were crossing with their parents.

I was very shocked by the aggression in his driving and the fact that he had no care for anyone else who was driving around him.

My other incident with a taxi driver was when we were driving along Penarth Road and the driver was getting impatient with other drivers in front, including myself, who were following the speed limits.

He finally got so impatient that he overtook three cars.

When he went past me, I saw that he was on his mobile phone.

I found this disgraceful. How can a licensed driver who has passengers in the back of his car, decide to go on his mobile phone while overtaking three cars?

James L, Penarth

Letters to the editor

Disgust over the potholes

I AM writing to express my disgust at the lack of maintenance of the Vale's roads.

The potholes are terrible, and especially bad around the town centre. If a member of the public goes out on their bike and hits one of these potholes, there could be a serious accident. This could be made even worse if a car was travelling towards the cyclist and then the bike hit a pothole, the cyclist could be seriously injured.

I hope this matter receives the utmost urgent attention of the Vale Council, due to the seriousness and potential to cause harm to the public and road users in the Vale.

I intend to address this matter later this year with the publication of Understanding Moorgate, in which I dispel the recorded fact

The worst train service of all!

DO any of your readers catch the Vale trains? I do. I catch the train from Eastbrook to Cogan and vice versa.

I was on my way to Eastbrook and I checked the service board and my train was expected in two minutes, lucky! I was standing with friends so I wasn't by myself. Five minutes had gone and the train still had not appeared. Ten minutes later, the train still wasn't there. It really annoyed me that I had to wait 10 minutes for my train to arrive when it said it was due in two minutes.

If it wasn't expected on time, why lie and not give us the given time? To improve the problem, the time board should give the right time and tell you if the train is delayed.

It is a fact that Britain has the worst train service and countries like India have a better train provision.

Saffron Collins-Ton, Dinas Powys

Tube train driver recalls Moorgate

IT was very interesting to read the Barry's Men's Forum column in The GEM on March 11.

I was a tube train driver at the time of the Moorgate tube train disaster and I and many of my colleagues felt that relevant information was withheld from the Government inquiry and the coroner's inquest.

I intend to address this matter later this year with the publication of Understanding Moorgate, in which I dispel the recorded fact that the train that crashed was the one that had been prepared, brought into service and worked all morning by the driver who was found dead in the wreckage of his crushed driving cab.

Scrutiny of the evidence strongly suggests that the dead driver and his guard had changed trains with another crew at Old Street station the trip before the crash – and that the dead driver had only driven this change-over train once to Moorgate, whereupon it crashed.

Anthony Bright,

Red Kite was spotted, twice

WITH reference to the letter from Martin Tomlinson about the Red Kite seen on March 13, we also saw a Red Kite flying south-west from the direction of Cowbridge at 2pm-2.30pm on that day.

We saw one flying over Llanmaes, in the same direction, a few weeks previously. Ann Smith, Llanmaes

I saw it, too?

DID I see the same Red Kite flying over the main road in Ystradowen on Friday morning?

Mrs VP Robins, Trerhyngyll

WE welcome your views and news. Please email the Editorial Department at: ggem@internet-today.co.uk

Warning, no fishing without a licence!

IT is that time of year again where new environmental course river rod licenses are required to be renewed or purchased ready for April 1.

Last year, some 4,100 people were caught and fined up to £2,500 each for simply defying the law and failing to purchase a rod licence.

This year, an adult licence costs £26; junior under -16 £8, minor under-12 is free, but they have to be accompanied by someone over-16 with a rod licence.

Time after time, anglers contact the Environmental Agency to report people fishing on privately owned ponds and lakes or rivers as they know these people do not have a licence and are trespassing.

Environmental officers have the power of arrest; will confiscate their rods and other equipment and can also take them to court.

An environmental rod licence is not a pass that entitles people to fish private lakes or ponds or rivers, they have to become members and pay the fees as we do.

So the advice I would give to all is: Get a rod licence, join a club, or go to day ticket waters (there are plenty around the Vale).

Most tackle shops have application forms to join fishing clubs or places where you can fish for the day at a cost but you still need a rod licence.

R Phillips, Barry

The Red Kite was magnificent

IN response to Martin Tomlinson's letter in The GEM on March 18 – yes, we did see a Red Kite.

It was mid-morning on Monday, March 5. My partner and I were driving from Cowbridge, going in the direction of Pontyclun. We had just gone through Aberthaw and as we came round the bend, he was standing in the road, feeding on a dead magpie.

I had to slow almost to a halt as he obviously didn't want to leave his lunch.

We have never been as close to a Red Kite. He surveyed us with some annoyance and lazily lifted himself into the air – a truly magnificent sight.

Let's hope he wasn't just passing through. Annie Grujic, St Hilary LLANTWIT MAJOR'S SPRING UPDATE . . .

ADVERTISEMENT FEATURE

WIN ONE OF FOUR £25 SHOPPING VOUCHERS!

The Glamorgan GEM is offering four lucky readers the chance to win a £25 shopping voucher – to spend at any of the businesses advertising in this feature.

All you have to do to enter this competition is answer this question:

What historical theme does Llantwit Major adopt for its biennial summer fair?

(A) Elizabethan (B) Victorian
(C) Edwardian.

Send your name, address and telephone number to us, on a postcard marked 'Llantwit Competition', no later than Friday, April 9.

No correspondence will be entered into and judge's decision is final. Good luck!

Spring sunshine sees Llantwit at its very best

SPRING has finally sprung after a long and distinctly hard winter.

The new lambs in the fields and a few brave daffodils starting to blossom herald the beginnings of this annual rebirth.

Like our pagan forebears, we know that the sun has passed its equinox and is now returning to brighten up our lives and bring us some warmth.

In Llantwit Major, the spring sunshine shows the historic town at its best, with its many ancient stone buildings throwing off the greyness of winter and glowing in the heat of the sun.

The town has an enviable heritage with many fine old buildings including the church and the remains of St Illtud's monastery and college.

Young's Butchers

ALAN YOUNG, a Llantwit man, learned his trade originally under the guidance of David Griffiths.

Alan began at the age of 12 and is now 69 years of age. The business – situated in the old part of Llantwit, beside St Illtud's Church – is a well established butchers, which has stood the test of time. While other businesses have come and gone, Young's Butchers is still going strong.

Alan took on a new manager two years ago – Marc Owen, who now feels he is ready to move the business forward, as Alan steps back to become a silent owner.

Mind you, Alan would probably laugh if it was said – "he's not usually silent – this will be a first!"

Marc is a very capable young man, who recently became a proud dad to Chloie.

Marc intends to make a number of changes. First being to increase the opening hours. From March 28, the butchers will be open all day, every day except Sunday and Monday.

Specialising in Welsh Black Beef, Welsh Lamb, Woodland Pork, local fresh free range poultry, home-made faggots and traditional meaty sausages.

Marc is keen to make an impression managing the butchers Tuesday to Friday, while Alan will keep his hand in each Saturday.

New Craft & Gift Venture

for Llantwit Major

Starting on 10th April

there will be a

Monthly Craft and Gift Fair held in the Llantwit Hall

The organisers say that they have been thinking for a while that Llantwit should host a regular event for crafters, makers and alternative retailers.

If Cowbridge can do it, so can we! There will be a variety of stalls and some will change from month to month. Already, there are card and paper crafters, jewellery makers and sellers, candle makers and knitters, wood turners and photographers represented, as well as unusual felt bunting and homemade produce. There will be fair trade and home made light refreshments available. It is certainly worth a visit, if only for a browse, a coffee or tea and some lovely cake, to support this opportunity for showcasing local creativity.

This heritage may be promoted more vigorously in future as plans take shape to explore the possible connections that the town has to one of the greatest figures in British history – King Arthur!

If this can be properly developed, there is huge potential for Llantwit to become a centre for mass tourism of the sort that already exists in other Arthurian centres like Glastonbury and Tintagel.

All the shops and businesses might benefit. Existing restaurants, cafés and pubs could see an upsurge in visitors seeking refreshments while there is potential for the shops to promote books, souvenirs and crafts.

Llantwit traders are already in talks with the Vale Council's new town centre manager Peter Lewis to promote the town in a variety of ways.

It is fair to say that, at the moment, possible commercial developments in Llantwit are on hold while everyone awaits news of the Metrix development.

Once this gets the final go ahead and work gets under way, there is no doubt that the area will benefit immensely from a scheme that will pump billions into the local economy and create hundreds of jobs.

There will also be new homes bringing in more people to support the shops and businesses of the area.

In the meantime, local businesses are preparing for the more immediate rush of visitors over the Easter holiday.

As end of financial year arrives next week... HEALTH BOARD HEADS FOR A £3.9m DEFICIT

THE Abertawe Bro Morgannwg University Health Board which runs hospitals serving Bridgend and the western Vale is likely to end up with a £3.9m deficit at the end of the financial year next week.

Management have been working hard to reduce this over recent months and ABM is one of the better new health boards in Wales.

Almost all of them are heading for big deficits as they grapple with inherited deficits caused, in some cases, by the merger of boards and trusts which took place last October.

Hywel Dda in west

Wales is the worst with a projected £12m deficit with Gwent on £10m; Cardiff and the Vale on £5.5m; Cwm Taff on £5m and Powys on £7.6m. Only Betsi Cadwaladr in north Wales is set to break even.

ABM was created by merging the old ABM NHS Hospital Trust with the Swansea, Neath Port Talbot and Bridgend Local Health Boards. The ABM Trust was itself created three years ago by the merger of the old Bro Morgannwg NHS Trust with Swansea NHS Trust.

There were fears then among staff that Bro Morgannwg, which always ended in surplus at the end of the financial year, would be saddled with the financial problems from the Swansea end which was always in deficit. Financial director for ABM Eifion Williams has warned recently that the board was at risk of failing to deliver its statutory duties because of its financial problems.

A question was put to the ABM board by The GEM asking what those statutory duties were, but at the time of going to press, there had been no response - other than a provisional one stating that it could be a reference to the board's statutory duty to break even financially - but this has not been confirmed.

Staff at the Princess of Wales have already contacted The GEM about cut-backs, bed closures and staff shortages at the hospital caused by the board's financial difficulties.

The new board also runs all primary care services in the area, funding GP surgeries, dentists and pharmacists so any further cut-backs to balance the books will have far-reaching effects across the whole of the health service.

The Big Brew!

Local schoolgirl Rebekah West was appointed Fairtrade's official reporter for the Big Brew event in Dinas Powys. Here is her account:

THE Big Brew took place in the Parish Hall, Dinas Powys on March 6. It was held from 10am till 12 noon.

It was held to celebrate Dinas Powys being a Fairtrade village. The purpose of the event was to show everyone the beautiful Fairtrade products they could buy, and raise awareness of Fairtrade. The schools from around the village entered competitions and their lovely work was on display. Thank you for all the schools that took part.

It was organised by the Dinas Powys Fairtrade team. It went very well and around 130 to 140 people came. There was a very warm welcome and at the door everyone was given a ticket to get a free Fairtrade kit kat! Also everyone who brought a cup, got a free Fairtrade cup of tea.

Fairtrade is very important for farmers and others who are less fortunate than ourselves. It is improving lives for many poor people from around the world and giving a reasonable amount of money for all their hard work.

There were lots of different stalls and many people got involved. Thank you to everyone who came and supported Fairtrade. It was a great success!

I LOVE YOU, PHILLIP MORRIS - AND YOU MAY DO SO, TOO!

COMEDIANS who move to dramatic fare are somewhat of a mixed bag; while Adam Sandler showed he could rein in his man-child tendencies in Punch-Drunk Love, Spanglish and Funny People, and Eric Bana has transferred from stand-up comedian to stand-out actor with the likes of Chopper and Troy, there have been many who have struggled to achieve the same acclaim.

One comedian who has made the successful leap is Jim Carrey, who has balanced the likes of Dumb and Dumber and Bruce Almighty with Man on the Moon, The Truman Show and Eternal Sunshine of the Spotless Mind.

His latest sees him take on the true life tale of a con-man in I Love You, Phillip Morris. Carrey plays Steven Russell, a happily married family man who, after a car accident, reassesses his life and decides that not only is he gay, but also decides to live life to the fullest - whether that be legally or illegally.

When he is imprisoned, Steven meets Phillip Morris (Ewan McGregor). Falling in love, Steven is intent on building the perfect life for the two of them outside prison walls, and will do whatever it takes to achieve this, including a light spot of law breaking...

Stories of con artists and hustlers generally make for a quality viewing experience. Whether it be Leonardo DiCaprio being pursued by Tom Hanks in Catch Me If You Can, or Nicolas Cage conning people in Matchstick Men, the dubious world these characters inhabit are always brought vividly to life, and rarely do they position the con artist as the bad guy.

This much is true of ...Phillip Morris, and while it perhaps doesn't quite scale the heights of those aforementioned works, it still makes for a pleasing experience.

While the casting of Jim Carrey in the lead may lead some to believe this is an out-and-out comedy, it is a little more obscure than his mainstream fare.

Carrey acolytes who appreciate the dark and twisted humour he offered in the much-maligned The Cable Guy will be on surer footing, as while this film doesn't plunge to the dark depths that film did, it is a little odder than, say, Fun With Dick and Jane.

Carrey delivers a wonderful turn as the man whose life seemingly willingly turns upside down into a world of crime. While the life of Steven Russell is an intriguing one in itself, Carrey plays the role broadly for comic effect, with the film occasionally lapsing into drama.

Given his talent for both the comedic and the dramatic, Carrey is well suited to the role, yet tends to provide too much of the latter and not enough of the former.

The mugging is restrained, but the performance, while strong, could have benefited from being rooted a little more in reality than it is.

A quality cast have been assembled around Carrey, and while they all bring the goods to the table, they are short-changed to a degree by a script that never gives them enough.

Ewan McGregor seems to have been enjoying finding his feet in films that don't require as much star wattage, and follows up his role in The Men Who Stare At Goats with another warm and enjoyable performance.

Full of wide-eyed admiration for Steven, he shares good chemistry with Carrey and is a solid foil to his co-star; it is just a shame that he is little more than a cipher for the story, being given no backstory or real depth.

The same goes for Leslie Mann, as Steven's ex-wife, and Rodrigo Santoro as his ex-boyfriend. Both characters offer up decent turns, but it's more a result of their abilities as actors rather than anything the script feeds them.

It's a shame that the supporting characters, all of whom play such a pivotal part in Steven's life, aren't given enough meat to give the story some dramatic weight, and while the actors inhibiting the characters work hard, it isn't reflected in a screenplay that sidelines them.

Screenwriters and directors John Requa and Glenn Ficarra take the incredible nature of the story and craft a film that is high on chutzpah and 'did that really happen' histrionics - some of Russell's schemes and ideas are so full of bravura that they lend themselves perfectly to the frothy nature of the film.

What they do a little less successfully, aside from offering a degree of depth to the events taking place, is to work a way to get the events to gel.

As the film pounds its way towards its conclusion, there is a notable tonal shift from light-hearted to something far more serious; it's a shift with a sting in its tail, but even so, it feels a little awkward and takes the steam out of the film's engines a little.

I Love You, Phillip Morris is an intriguing and comedic proposition - its true-life origins make for a film that is highly interesting; while it may not hit stratospheric heights, the audacity of some of Steven Russell's scams will keep you engrossed throughout.

by GARETH JAMIESON

While the script isn't the best, overall it is a pleasing work that will entertain - and you may end up loving Phillip Morris, too!

VERDICT - A frothy crime caper, I Love You, Phillip Morris is a solid vehicle for Jim Carrey to show off both his flair for comedy and drama.

While a touch too light at times, and with a script that is far too reliant on the lead character, the performances and strength of story iron out those flaws, resulting in a film that is entertaining.
Enjoyable.

Travel back in time to Cosmeston

AS spring arrives and the trees burst into leaf, so Cosmeston Medieval Village prepares for yet another busy year.

The first event of the season is the Easter 'living history' event on April 4-11 from 11am to 5pm. Visitors will have the opportunity to see what life was like for rich and poor more than 600 years ago.

As visitors wander the village and see the buildings, artefacts and animals of medieval Wales they can stop and chat to villagers performing a variety of different crafts, from baking and tending the gardens, to herbalism and the more unpleasant skills shown by the surgeon!

There will also be the chance to try on armour and hold weapons of the medieval knight and even have a go at archery! For visitors with an urge to act, one of the village mummers will be asking for help in preparing a play to set before the manor's lord.

"But most important of all is the traditional Easter Egg Hunt - not really medieval, but we all love it - and who could turn down the chance of some chocolate?" spokesperson said.

Dress up or down for a pound – and raise a smile for Ty Hafan

SCHOOLS and local groups are being urged to take part in a 'Dress Up or Down for a Pound' campaign for Ty Hafan hospice on Friday, April 30.

A spokeswoman explained: "The life-limited children and young people who visit Ty Hafan, love to dress up and have fun while making the most of every precious moment they have left with their families. "Show your support for them and join in the fun by dressing up or down and paying a pound so these life-limited children, young people and their families continue to get the comfort, care and support they so desperately need, completely free of charge."

Christmas present, a Christmas tree and a crackle! There is nothing we wouldn't do to raise a smile."

However you decide to dress on April 30, by donating just £1 to Ty Hafan you can help to keep on raising those smiles and making the world of difference to the lives of the families and children who use Ty Hafan's services.

For more information on how to take part in 'Dress Up or Down for a Pound' visit www.dressupordownforapound.co.uk or contact Gaynor on 029 2067 2060.

Hospice staff – Kirsty Clark, Tracy Hill, and Lynne Doyle ('Rabbit').

Cinema's story at the Park

THE history of Barry's last cinema, the Theatre Royal, is covered in an exhibition of memorabilia, photographs, posters and pictures at 'The Room in the Park'.

Put together by local resident John Moore, the 'From Chaplin to Bond... and beyond' exhibition at the Victoria Park venue will run from April 1-17. Entry is free, and it will be open daily from 10am-4pm (closed between 1pm-2pm on weekends).

The exhibition covers the building's 100-year history through the age of silent movies to the all-action blockbusters of the 21st Century, and includes extracts from old newspapers and prints from old newsreels.

Twinning meeting

THE Vale of Glamorgan Twinning Association will meet on March 31, at the Vale Civic Offices in Barry at 4.30pm, when 10 members, including two Vale councillors, and officers will be appointed.

The association will promote, support and develop links with Fécamp (France), Mouscron (Belgium) and Rheinfelden (Germany) – the Vale's twin towns – and Jurbarkas (Lithuania) and Neumarkt (Italy), with whom there are friendship pacts.

The Vale Council's cabinet has agreed a three-year funding package of £6,000 for the association.

CAB calls for bilingual volunteers

THE Citizens Advice Bureau in the Vale and Bridgend is appealing for bilingual volunteers to man the phones.

CAB: Adviceline Cymru is a new bilingual service which provides callers with information, can recommend other appropriate local organisations and services and will also set up face to face appointments when needed.

It has been successfully piloted and is now ready to expand, thanks to a £750k boost from the Welsh Assembly government.

Full training will be provided for all Adviceline Cymru volunteers, including support to brush up Welsh speaking skills if needed.

Jane Clay manager of Vale of Glamorgan CAB said: "Enquiries to bureaux across Wales rose by 11% last year. Adviceline Cymru will enable even more people in Wales to access free confidential advice on any issue they may have.

"Absolutely anyone can apply but we're particularly keen to hear from Welsh speakers or anybody who wishes to brush up their Welsh"

For further information visit www.citizen-sadvice.org.uk/amazey-ourselves or call: 08451 264 264* (English language line) or 01286 676 514* (Welsh language line).

Easter at KPC Youth

KPC Youth will be open for the school Easter holidays with a packed programme of activities.

The centre is open to ages 8+ (with free admission, if members, for ages 13-17 years). Admission cost is otherwise just £1 per session, and £1.50 to become a member.

KPC also offers a FREE minibus service home for 13+ on a Tuesday and Thursday nights to Kenfig Hill, Cefn Cribwr and Cornelly.

The programme includes:

Fishing Trip (Sunday, March 28); Go Karting (Tuesday, March 30); Quad Biking (Wednesday, March 31); Boxing (PM Thursday, April 1 and Thursday, April 8); Trip to the Crystal Maze + Bowling (Friday, April 9); Trip to see Moulin Rouge at Porthcawl Pavilion (Saturday, April 10); and lots of sports, the skate park, arts/crafts, and a range of workshops on Healthy Lifestyles.

April 1 and Thursday, April 8); Trip to the Crystal Maze + Bowling (Friday, April 9); Trip to see Moulin Rouge at Porthcawl Pavilion (Saturday, April 10); and lots of sports, the skate park, arts/crafts, and a range of workshops on Healthy Lifestyles.

The centre opens daily from 10am, but will be closed for the Bank Holiday Weekend (April 2-5).

For details of forthcoming events, telephone 01656 745399.

KPC Youth is next to Pil Primary School, Off Pyle Inn Way, Pyle.

and for our younger guests there is a Dinky Dexters menu - various tea time treats!

Dexters is a country tearoom where you can chill out!

DEXTERS @ FELINDRE MILL on the border of the Vale is a farm with a difference, and is just two minutes from J35/M4 and 10 minutes from Cowbridge.

Our country tearoom, set in a traditional timber-framed barn, offers morning coffee, light lunches and afternoon tea. There is even a tasty, dinky Dexters menu for the children! So if you are looking for somewhere to chill out, or meet friends for a coffee and a chat, why not call in and see us? We're sure Boris the cockerel and his brood of hens will be pleased to see you.

Re-opening 3rd April – Easter Saturday
then Saturdays and Sundays 11.00 am - 5.00 pm

Caring for our Environment

WILDLIFE AND COUNTRYSIDE ACT 1981 AS SUBSTITUTED BY SCHEDULE 9 TO THE COUNTRYSIDE AND RIGHTS OF WAY ACT 2000
NOTIFICATION OF A SITE OF SPECIAL SCIENTIFIC INTEREST UNDER SECTION 28 (1)

NOTICE is hereby given that the Countryside Council for Wales considers Cors Aberthin to be a Site of Special Scientific Interest (SSSI). The site is located 0.3 km to the north east of Aberthin and 0.65 km north of Cowbridge in the Unitary Authority of the Vale of Glamorgan and covers an area of 11.7 hectares. Centred on National Grid Reference ST 003755. The site is of special interest for its marshy grassland and species-rich neutral grassland.

Under this notification there is a requirement on all owners and occupiers to notify the Council of certain operations which may damage the special interest of the site. Failure to do so may constitute an offence.

This notification does not confer any rights of access to Cors Aberthin SSSI. Any person with an interest in the land may make representations regarding the notification in writing to the Council at the address below by 23 July 2010.

Full details of the notification including a map, site description and list of potentially damaging operations and a statement on the Council's views about the management of the land can be obtained from: Countryside Council for Wales, 7, Castleton Court, Portraeth Road, St Mellons, Cardiff CF3 6LT.

Family Notices

FOSTER Campbell William

Peacefully, on March 19th at Princess of Wales Hospital, Bridgend after a short illness, Campbell of Llantwit Major. Beloved husband of Chris, loving father of Julia and Meurig, Emma and Rich, proud son of Margaret and John, brother of Malcolm. Resting at the Private Funeral Home of W James & Sons, Fommon. Funeral Tuesday, March 30th, service 2pm at The Gathering Place, St Athan followed by cremation at Coychurch Crematorium, Bridgend at 3.45pm. No flowers by request, donations in lieu if desired to St Athan Methodist Church or The Salvation Army, both c/o J James, 11 Fommon Road, Rhosce, CF62 3DZ.

Clarice May Jones

The Family would like to thank all of their relatives, friends & neighbours for messages of sympathy received during the recent bereavement. A special thank you to Dr McGovern, district nurses and Marie Curie nurses, especially Jackie, for their compassion and care. A thank you to Nan, Aelene and Babs. Also to Insight Club Cowbridge, Kay from Age Concern and the staff at the Red Cross at the Gathering Place. A final thank you to all who attended the funeral, Reverend Binny and Reverend Prince for a lovely service and W James & Son, Funeral Directors and kind donations to Marie Curie nurses.

TURRELL Clive Edward

Clive passed away peacefully, at home, in the presence of his family on Sunday March 21, after a long illness fought with great strength of spirit.

He was the loving and dearly loved husband of Marilyn, the loved and respected father of Andrew and James, father-in-law of Amy and adored grandad of Milly and Elsie (in New Zealand).

He was also a very dear brother-in-law, uncle and friend to many. His sparkling wit and great sense of fun will be sadly missed by all who came into contact with him.

Resting at WA Brown & Son, Pembroke House, College Street, Llantwit Major CF61 1SG until the service at Coychurch Crematorium, Bridgend, on Wednesday March 31 at 2.45pm (where all please meet).

Flowers may be sent to the funeral home, or if wished donations for Macmillan Cancer Relief, or Marie Curie Cancer Care may be given to the funeral director (cheques only, please).

Pony club holds award night for young riders

THE fourth Glamorgan Pony Club annual presentation evening was held recently in the Reading Rooms in Bonvilston.

District Commissioner Norma Griffiths started off by thanking everyone who puts in so much help throughout the year, and handed over to secretary Annie Whitehouse, who gave a review of the year.

The highlights included camp week, winning all the classes in the team show jumping winter series in Talygarn, and the annual duck race, to mention but a few.

After the run-through of the accounts, Norma introduced Mike Gibbon, Master of Fox Hounds of the Glamorgan Hunt and president of Glamorgan Pony Club, to hand out certificates to members who had represented Glamorgan at various area competitions:

Area quiz: Evie Vaughn Jones, Tom Brinn, Gemma Brinn, Alice Pembroke, Emma Lockwood, Ellie Dix, Louise Edwards, Adam Dix, Nonnie Medlicott, Bethany Jarvis, Ellie Medlicott, Madison Garland, Alyson Bater.

Area Tetrathlon (minis): Genevieve Kirk, Ellie Medlicott.

Area evening: Pippa Hayes, Emma Lockwood, Bethany Jarvis, Bethan Allman, Jessica Tidley, Alice Pembroke.

Area dressage: Emma Lockwood, Pippa Hayes, Jessica Tidley, Alice Pembroke, Bethany Jarvis, Ellie Medlicott, Alice Pembroke.

Madison Garland.

Area show jumping: Jessica Tidley, Ellie Dix, Alice Pembroke.

Next was the presentation of the cups: The best attendance under-12 went to Luke Tidley, over-12 to Bethan Allman.

Best turned out throughout the year went to Ellie Dix.

Represented pony club most times - to Alice Pembroke.

The Hunter trial cup went to Adam Dix.

The most improved rider went to Evie Vaughn-Jones.

Mike finished off the evening with a huge thanks to Norma for her hard work, and to the children who make it all worthwhile.

The club caters for all abilities, from leading rein to B test level and above. Anyone interested in joining, should come along to a Wednesday evening rally at Spring Meadows, Llandow, or telephone Norma 01446 734687.

Bebb returns to home club

GOLFERS at a club in south Wales will be able to practise and learn indoors, thanks to the impact of The Ryder Cup coming to Wales in October.

Llantrisant and Pontyclun golf club have new indoor practice nets, teaching facilities and putting area, officially opened by PGA European Tour star Sion Bebb, who learned to play as a junior member at the club before travelling the world in the professional ranks.

The club aim to produce more top players like Bebb in the future because of the new facilities and a drive to encourage children, women and men to take up the game at the Talbot Green course, thanks to a grant from Ryder Cup Wales showing the impact the event is having on Welsh golf at all levels.

For the first month after the official opening on March 19 there will be free lessons for ladies on a Tuesday, juniors and men on a Saturday, using the new state-of-the-art facilities.

Bella wins at Uttoxeter

PETERSTON-SUPER-ELY farmer Phil Dando saw his eight-year-old homebred mare Bella Haze land the Totescoop Handicap Hurdle under David Prichard (19) at Uttoxeter last Saturday.

A winner of three of her last four races, Bella Haze, a 12-1 chance, was given a peach of a ride by her determined young rider, who is making a name for himself.

Bella Haze could run at Cheltenham next in a mares only race.

The men's open race and the ladies' open race at the Curra & Llangibby point-to-point were both won by horses qualified with the Penttyrch Hunt.

Keith Pritchard's Cannon Bridge, ridden by Welsh champion rider Isabel Tompsett, made all the running to land the ladies' open by four lengths from Grey Kid and Mrs Rae Jones' Up There, partnered by Liam Payer, took up the running approaching the final fence to score by seven lengths from Saint Reveren.

Robert Rowsell's Divvys Dream, who is also qualified with the Penttyrch Hunt, took the second division of the maiden under John Norman in a time which was eleven seconds faster than Go On Paddy Joe had taken in winning the first division.

Norman, who rides out for Aberthyn trainer Tim Vaughan, was denied a double when his club members' mount Sams Lad was beaten a neck by Prioritisation.

Cowbridge's James Tudor riding Lynda Lovell's The Boat took the restricted race after leading five fences from home to score by twelve lengths from Turn Card.

The Boat, who had failed to finish in his previous three starts, looks sure to go on to better things now that he appears to have sorted out his jumping problems.

It is a 'remarkable resurgence' as... Town fight back to reach semi-final COWBRIDGE Town continued their remarkable resurgence with a win that sends them into the semi-finals of the Vale of Glamorgan League Cup at the expense of Cadoxton Imps.

Cowbridge showed great determination to seal victory and dispatch the Imps for the second successive weekend.

The Red and Blacks again lined up at Barry Sports Centre, minus a couple of key individuals, and struggled in the early stages as the Imps set the pace. Not helped by playing into a strong headwind, Cowbridge failed to find their passing rhythm and allowed the hosts to take the lead after just 10 minutes.

A hopeful cross came off the Town bar and with no defender in sight, the Imps' striker tapped in for 1-0.

It got worse shortly afterwards as a strong home side continued to dominate without carving out too many clear openings. A second had been on the cards, however, and duly came courtesy of a low drive which nestled into the bottom corner of Ian Baye's goal.

It didn't look as if Cowbridge would be seeing any more cup action this season, but Town showed that a bit of luck can often pay dividends in this game - and so it proved as two of the scrappiest goals seen this season got Cowbridge back on level terms before half-time.

Against the run of play, a hopeful ball into the box came off the shoulder of striker Jack Gavin to find the net at the near post, despite the presence of half a dozen defenders.

With half-time looming, the equaliser came in not too dissimilar fashion as a looping effort was somehow not pushed over by the Imps' goalkeeper, and as the ball dropped after hitting the woodwork, a sea of bodies engaged in a scramble that eventually saw Matthew Pound bundle the ball home.

Manager Ed Jones read the riot act at half-time and his Cowbridge charges knew they were fortunate to be level. In a classic demonstration of a game of two halves, Town showed why they have now won seven straight games with a second half display that showcased plenty of ability and a fine team spirit.

Luke James was instrumental as Cowbridge banished any thoughts of first half sloppiness with wave after wave of attacking moves. Lloyd Lewis was unfortunate not to finish off the move of the match after two minutes when he shot just over.

Town did take the lead for the first time in the match, courtesy of a Craig Burrows header, the captain rising at the back post with a trade mark effort.

Cadoxton saw little of the ball for the rest of the half as Cowbridge looked to seal victory in style. An effort by Gavin went wide after he had collected a neat through ball, while Town were finding joy down the right, thanks to some pinpoint passes by James.

Luke came close with an ambitious 40-yard effort before sealing a semi-final place for Bridge with 10 minutes remaining. Finding himself outside from a ball over the top, the tricky winger placed an effort over the advancing keeper to spark great joy in the away side's ranks.

Having been two down and shell-shocked after half an hour, the side showed a brilliant attitude to turn things around and seal a terrific victory at the second placed side in the league.

Dinas Powys regret missing vital chances

BRYNTIRION 2 - DINAS POWYS 1
WELSH LEAGUE - DIVISION 1

AFTER a thorough pitch inspection by the referee, this game was deemed playable after heavy rain during the day.

The hosts had the best of the early exchanges, Ricky Hodge shooting wide from a corner and Jon Cuss volleying wide.

Dinas began to assert some pressure of their own when a good run and cross by Rhodri Foote was met by Joe Hinds, but the chance was cleared. On the 15 minute mark, Barry Pappin took a free kick which found Jacob Rudman whose shot cleared the cross-bar.

This was followed by another chance when a shot from Hinds was blocked but fell to Mark Dunford who hammered the ball home but was adjudged offside.

Dinas finally got the breakthrough on 25 minutes when Hinds again broke into the box but was chopped down.

This time Dunford made no mistake from the penalty spot to give the visitors the lead.

The hosts then upped the pressure and Dinas held their lead for just 12 minutes before Lloyd Davies was adjudged to have tripped a Bryntirion forward in the box and Tom Wellington made it 1-1 from the spot.

Just before the interval the visitors' superb keeper Peter Blain had to make a diving save to gather a deflected shot and had to make another save when Cuss got a shot on target from a corner but the half ended level.

Dinas had early chances at the start of the second half, Dunford latching onto a through ball but his effort was just wide and a good passing sequence between Hinds and Dunford set up substitute Provis for a chance but he was closed down.

As the half wore on the hosts began to get on top and Blain put in a man-of-the-match performance blocking shots from all angles and tipping one deep cross cum shot from the Bryntirion captain Paul Evans over the bar.

However, the pressure finally told when a cross from the left was swept home by Anthony Rawlings to give the hosts the lead with 15 minutes remaining.

It was backs to the wall time for Dinas as the very fit Bryntirion side looked to increase their lead.

Hodge did manage to beat Blain but his effort was ruled offside and Dinas saw out the remaining minutes to keep the score respectable.

Dinas can reflect that they can match the best teams in the division after their performances over the last three matches.

Further details can be found on the club's website at www.dinaspowys-fc.co.uk

Llantwit Major Junior football round-up

by GWYN JOHN

THE heavy rain on Friday night put paid to many matches across south Wales on Saturday.

Only one match went ahead at Windmill Lane, where Llantwit Major under-12s played Holton Road.

Both under-14 A and under-15 matches were postponed, as their pitches were waterlogged.

The under-12 side kept up their good form to beat Holton Road 7-0, to complete another double and move further in front at the top of the league.

This week, the goals were shared between Will Perkins (2), Richard Stevens, Kristian Jones, Richard Dangerfield, Luke Allison and Harvey Stockford.

The under-14 B side travelled to Dinas Powys A and lost 5-0 on a waterlogged pitch, which was unfit and the game should have been called off.

The under-13 B also followed a similar fate in losing to Dinas Powys B 6-0 on the adjoining pitch.

The club are certainly hoping for better weather to catch up on the fixture backlog.

are on the next club show to be held at Llantwit Major RFC on April 15, together with other local boxers from St Athan, Llantwit and Rhosce, including some female bouts.

THE KARATE TIGERS EARN THEIR STRIPES

BARRY YMCA Hub was the venue when the latest Vale Karate Tigers grading examination took place.

More than 20 children from four to seven years, who train at Vale Karate on Saturday and Monday classes at the YMCA, demonstrated a series of techniques in order to earn new belts – material proof that they are all improving.

Vale Karate chief instructor and head coach Rob Copeland, has adapted the traditional syllabus for this age group, aiming for a more gradual improvement, ensuring the children enjoy their karate as they earn striped belts between the traditional Kyu grades.

Rob said: "I've been delighted with the development of this group of children and am used to seeing huge improvements in young children's confidence.

"I have also been hugely encouraged by the response of parents, with many reporting a great improvement in their children's general behaviour.

Barry Town rue missed chances

Nathaniel Car Sales cup semi-final
BARRY TOWN 1
CROESYCEILIOG 2

BARRY Town went into this game with confidence, having appeared to have turned the corner after some indifferent results in January and February.

There were changes to the team, with Atif Bashir, Jaymes Dixon and Lewis James all cup-tied and Kirk Huggins joining the lengthening injury list.

Even with all these changes, the team should still have been good enough to win the game against their struggling second division opponents. Cup games bring some strange score lines and this game was to prove that.

The team started well and were soon into their renowned passing game, but within a few minutes a quick ball out to the right was floated into the Barry Town penalty area and suddenly Croesy were one up.

The Dragons were straight back into the match and pressured the Croesy defence before a cross from the left by Nickie Jones found Sam Small at the far post to level the scores.

Barry Town completely dominated the first half but were susceptible to quick counter-attacks and were nearly caught out, but a brilliant stop from Dragons keeper Dan

Bradley saved what seemed to be a certain goal.

The second half was marred by a serious injury to Croesy defender Huw Williams, who was taken to hospital. The game was held up for 10-15 minutes and the break seemed to spur Croesy on.

Within 10 minutes, they had taken the lead again with a carbon copy of their first. The Dragons hit the crossbar twice and chances which should have been taken were not.

The Croesy defence stood firm against a Barry Town team which had the majority of the skill, possession and territory, but it's goals that win games and Croesy had two.

In the dying seconds, a Croesy defender appeared to handle the ball on the line to stop what looked like the goal to take the tie into extra time. Unfortunately for The Dragons, neither the referee nor his assistant saw the offence, so Croesy hung on for the win.

While all at the club were desperately disappointed with the outcome, we wish Croesy the very best of luck in the final, and also wish Huw Williams a speedy recovery.

Karate club has a new training centre

LOCAL karate champs Lee and Spencer Bennett, chief instructors of the Rising Sun Karate Club, are on a roll!

After raising more than £1,000 for local injured war hero, Dale Leech, and the charity Help for Heroes, they have opened their own training facility, the 'Samurai Martial Arts Centre and Power Strength Gym' for members of the club.

The beginners class is every Tuesday at 7pm in the new centre which is adjacent to The Savoy.

For the younger juniors, we have the Rising Sun Rising Stars. This involves using fun and games to teach four to seven-year-olds the discipline of martial arts in a

Knap fightback comes up short

KNAP FC were home to Cardiff Airport and fell behind to an early goal.

However, Knap looked comfortable with the premier league leaders with Steve Coxon playing the lone striker and working his socks off.

The midfield of Chris Bardsley and man of the match Wayne Davies, with the ever-present Walters, were having a lot of the ball, with Matthew Bradley and Russ Ware working the wings with purpose and energy.

The back four of Kevin Payne, Matthew Watts, James Howe and Jordan Ross were in control but after 65 minutes, the knap went three-nil down quickly.

A quality looping goal by Wayne into the Airport top corner cut the deficit but an error at the back let the Airport in for their fourth.

However, the Knap weren't finished and scored twice, the second from Wayne Davies.

They were back in it, with a chance to pull off one of the greatest come backs in Barry cup history – but it was not to be.

Good luck to the airport in the final

Final score: Knap FC 3 Cardiff Airport 4.

Wales women fall just short against Italians

WALES women came up just short against Italy at Pencoed RFC with a final score of 19-15.

In the first half Naomi Thomas notched a break-away try to set things off and at half time Wales looked confident of a win with a 12-0 lead.

Italy's pep talk led to a transformation in the match and they scored two tries in 10 minutes, and took the lead.

Wales could only add a penalty in the second half, and the players were devastated to come up short.

● Pencoed Phoenix women's team will play their first game at Pencoed on Easter Sunday at 2pm – come along there's entertainment and a barbecue.

Wanderers snatch defeat from the jaws of victory

VALE Wanderers faced St Peters at Dinas Powis and pushed their more experienced opponents to the brink of defeat.

Such has been the improvement in the Wanderers squad in recent weeks that the days of 40 point beatings seem a long way behind the team. Wanderers dominated the contact area in the first five minutes, crunching tackles went in from second row Bradley Boyland and captain Rhys Forse. After recovering from the shock of being knocked backwards on many occasions St Peters re-grouped to score the games opening try after some good ball retention work at the ruck. The try went un-converted.

The Wanderers came back at the visitors with powerful running from the pack and good hands from the backs who were supplied with good quality ball from the ever improving Theo Richards at 10. From a series of drives out wide, Jordan Schembri picked up from the base of a ruck and used all of his height to place the ball on the try line for an unconverted try, to level the scores. The half continued with the Wanderers dominating, however the visitors held firm to reach half time with the scores level. The Wanderers started the second half with more hard hits and good ball retention. The next try came from captain Rhys Forse who shook off several would be tacklers to score under the posts for a try which was converted by Theo Richards. With St Peters looking shocked, the Wanderers extended their lead with another powerful surge by captain Forse which was again converted by Richards. Several further chances to extend the lead went begging before St Peters hit back with two un-converted tries to bring the scores to 19-15. The visitors decided to run the ball from deep and their replacement centre scored the winning try with only seconds left. The Wanderers came back from the kick off but a knock on deep in the visitors 22 bought the game to an end. The relief on the visitors faces was clear to see as was the disappointment on the Wanderers faces. However, the boys can be very proud of the way they pushed St Peters to the end and came within inches of securing a fantastic victory. TJ

Victory brings a welcome breathing space, but a more testing time ahead

BACK PAGE COMMENT by Don John

AS a disappointing Six Nations finally drew to a close, the relief on Welsh coach Warren Gatland's face was palpable at the Millennium Stadium on Saturday.

Two victories may have been a poor return from a frustrating campaign in which his team had persistently shot themselves in the foot, but it could have been so much worse!

While the 33-10 home win over Italy was as welcome as it was necessary, to stave off his inevitable critics, the New Zealander knows they will not be kept at bay for long should there not be a marked upsurge in Welsh fortunes, amid concern that Team Wales had lost its way since the exhilarating Grand Slam in 2008.

There is no doubt, as was proven in the vastly-improved display on Saturday, that certain key individuals have been badly missed of late, particularly in the absence through injury of the Lions' front row.

Gethin Jenkins, Matthew Rees and Adam Jones were finally reunited against Italy, and with the return of scrum half Mike Phillips, the revitalised Welsh team looked a totally different proposition against a battling Italian side that had already beaten fellow Wooden Spoon candidates Scotland.

However, Gatland well knew that nothing less than a convincing victory over the Six Nations' so-called 'minnows' would silence the negative mutterings and at least end the campaign on a positive note. With the set piece problems that had haunted previous matches at last sorted out (particularly the previously malfunctioning lineout) giving man-of-the-match outside half Stephen Jones the space and time to do what he does best, controlling proceedings, the threequarters were freed to at last show glimpses of their true worth.

Suddenly, Wales were scoring tries again, with James Hook gliding through for two touchdowns and a third added by the not-to-be-denied Shane Williams in the second half.

On the other wing, accomplished teenager Tom Prydie made a very impressive international debut and with full back Lee Byrne returning to something like his old form, promising opportunities were being created in abundance as Wales finally found themselves playing on the front foot.

However, the squad also knew that victory over Italy and the scrambled last-ditch win over Scotland cannot disguise deep-seated shortcomings that surfaced in recent months and will certainly need to be put right long before the Rugby World Cup comes along next year, if Wales hope to match the All Blacks et al.

Wales now appear rooted in fourth place in the Six Nations table and will have to show a considerable improvement, with far sterner tests to come against the southern hemisphere giants, beginning with the South African world champions in June followed by a short two-test tour of New Zealand.

In contrast, France now seem to be proceeding smoothly along a well-ordered path laid out by coach Marc Lievreumont, buoyed by their Grand Slam-deciding 12-10 win over England in Paris.

Ireland's Triple Crown expectations were abruptly dashed by Scotland's unexpected 23-20 victory at Croke Park. The unlucky Scots have been a revelation, under their new coach Andy Robinson and deserved more than their misleading place languishing near the foot of the table.

They are justified in their belief that they should have beaten both England and Wales.

Be that as it may, the result against Italy has given the Welsh camp a welcome breathing space.

At least they avoided the final ignominy of a Wooden Spoon and now have an opportunity to regroup, address the problems manifested during the tournament, and focus afresh on the strategy for 2011.

Gatland's squad will need to put behind them the frustrations and disappointments of a nondescript Six Nations in which no team stood out with the quality of their play.

Wales were too often undone more by their own error-strewn shortcomings and lack of discipline than by superior opposition.

Despite the encouraging recovery shown against the resilient Italians, lessons are still there to be learned if Wales are to step up to the much higher level needed, before being exposed to the far harsher glare of the World Cup spotlight.

Dropped points for Town as they battle to a draw

WITH TUESDAY'S disappointing Chesterfield again made changes bringing back several absentees from Tuesday's encounter in Atif Bashir, James Dixon and Lewis James.

Manager Gavin Michael Parkins and Ian Jones joined Kirk Huggins as notable absentees due to injury and illness.

The Dragons began the game playing at pace and might have gone ahead as early as the third minute, the ball narrowly missing the post from striker Sam Small. It soon became obvious to onlookers that the failings of recent months, the inability to turn possession into goals, were beginning to emerge once again.

Midway into the first half, the talented Bashir neatly avoided several tackles before passing into the box, where mid-field dynamo Scott Jones netted after the ball had rebounded off the post. Barry continued to dominate the rest of the half and had several more opportunities but the score remained 1-0 at the interval.

The second half was quite simply dominated by the referee, who showed four or five yellow cards and a red card to Sam Small. The sending off seemed to dent the Dragons' confidence and it was only natural that they began to lose their shape allowing their lowly placed neighbours back into the game.

Rangers, with space now in which to operate started to exert pressure of their own and equalised when some fine football saw them score with a powerful header from Michael Osbourne, leaving Dan Bradley in the Barry goal helpless.

The Barry manager brought on local boy Christian Mills who, as last week, lifted the atmosphere with some thrilling runs and had a fine shot saved by the visiting keeper.

The match finished as a draw which was all in all a fair result.

Next up: Saturday, March 27th Aberaman (away); kick off 2.30pm.

The Vets put on a fast-moving game

SULLY SPORTS RFC 28
MAGOR 7

FOR THE first time in its history, because of the ageing of the 'Barry Plastics' players, the annual Nigel Westall charity fixture saw an invited opposition with Magor Vets RFC competing for the Cup.

In almost perfect conditions, the game was full of running rugby and played in a great spirit.

The pace of the game, considering the high average age of the players was fast from the outset, with both sides mounting well supported attacks, but it took 20 minutes before the defences were breached, when rampaging No 8 Scott Mills crashed through several would be tacklers following a five-metre scrum to score the opening try, well converted by Chris Cummins.

From the restart, the Sports attacked from in their 22, and winger Dave Stillman out sped the cover defence and ran in from the halfway line, again Cummins converting.

Play went from end to end in what was an even battle, only for the Sports to score another long-range try, with the last move of the half, when winger Wayne Jones finished off a great bout of handling and support play. Cummins added the conversion.

Magor were stunned to be down by 21 points, but to their credit kept playing with panache and confidence, and although both sides continued to keep the ball alive, only two scores came in a frantic second period.

Ten minutes into the half, Magor finished off a series of rucks and mauls in the home 22 for a well-deserved converted try. The last try, right on the final whistle, was another classic handling move that provided Cummins with a try and conversion.

The players and their large band of supporters then retired to the bar for a great afternoon of hospitality and fundraising, and even the disappointment of the defeat of Wales in Dublin did not dampen the festivities.

Nigel Westall's family and friends were grateful, and thanked both teams and sets of supporters for another wonderful memorial day, and for the charity cash raised which exceeded £300.
